SPIRIT OF '76 DEFIES STORM IN SOUTH BOSTON

South Boston's Evacuation Day parade took place to-day with all the enthusiasm and eclat of 134 years of peninsular patriotism.

The paraders and spectators simply laughed at the snow storm. South Boston was evacuated by the British. But there was a reason at that time. To-day the gallant residents of South Boston and their admiring guests refused to evacuate for any snow storm. It was the spirit of '76 all over again.

The parade started at 2 o'clock. Formation was begun at 1:30, at Edward Everett square. The big square became more and more crowded as formation proceeded.

One of the first arrivals, of course, was Chief Marshal Lieutenant John Franklin Meines. Ably assisted by his chief of staff, First Lieutenants George H. Nee, he proceeded to whip the incoming divisions smartly into shape.

Mayor Fitzgerald in Line.

Among the early arrivals, also, was Mayor John F. Fitzgerald. He came over to the home of a friend nearby on Columbus road and waited till he was notified that his carriage was ready for him.

There were loud cheers at the appearance of General Isaac Sherwood, sturdy veteran and member of Congress from Ohio, who was the guest of honor at the parade, just as he had been at the banquet of the South Boston Citizens' Association the night before. Fears were felt lest General Sherwood would not care to brave the raw elements. But General Sherwood would not come from Washington to take part in an Evacuation Day celebration for nothing. He was on the spot with the youngest.

With General Sherwood came Congressman Joseph F. O'Connell, who was given a great hand. Mayor Fitzgerald, General Sherwood, Congressman O'Connell and other guests rode in carriages in the parade till time came for them to leave the line and go to the reviewing stand.

At the word of command, the head of the column moved out from Edward Everett square and swung into Columbia road on its route which covered the peninsular district as far as possible.

The reviewing stand at the corner of C street and West Broadway was jammed when the parade started. Members of the South Boston Citizens' Association, in charge of the celebration, Mayor John F. Fitzgerald and representatives of the State and city governments were in the stand. General Isaac Sherwood, member of Congress from Ohio and the guest of honor at the banquet of the South Boston Citizens' Association the night before, was a noteworthy figure in the gathering.

South Boston gave up everything else to-day to celebrate Evacuation Day. This is the 134th anniversary of the departure of the 12,000 British troops who had laid siege to Boston for eight months. To-day's celebration was the tenth held by the citizens of South Boston. In elaborate arrangements, in general gaiety and in generous hospitality it outdid its nine predecessors.

There was green in the decorative scheme, too, on account of this also being St. Patrick's Day. Evacuation Day and St. Patrick's Day come together. But it is a fact of interest, however, that on the original day of evacuation 134 years ago

In the Near Future

MILLIONS OBSERVE ST. PATRICK'S DAY

All around the world to-day "The Wearing of the Green" is the spirit of the children of Ireland. Millions of the race in America, from the northern line of Canada to the equator, in Australia, in the islands of the Pacific, in South Africa, in India, everywhere the white race lives, the memory of St. Patrick is honored, first by the rites of the ancient church which Patrick gave to Ireland and later in the day by secular celebrations in which the many-sided story of the Irish people will be voiced in oratory and song.

Every city on the globe from Melbourne to Paris, from Cork to Seattle and beyond has its mass and its banquet. Even King Edward's Household Guards march on parade to the tune of St. Patrick's Day, while in New York 50,000 shamrock Celts, each with his sprig of green, tramp proudly up Fifth avenue in serried ranks to the great cathedral with flags flying and a hundred bands blaring out "Garryowen," Roosevelt's favorite tune.

Address by John Redmond.

In London, in the chief banquet hall of the Hotel Cecil, half a thousand Irishmen with John Redmond in the chair will feast "Ireland a Nation." The Irish leader is expected to make an important address dealing with the great political crisis in which he and his comrades are now the dominating factor.

The day is a national holiday in Ireland,

HAVERHILL FIRE LOSS $40,000

HAVERHILL, March 17.—Fire, thought to have been caused by explosion of escaping gas, did $40,000 damage in the heart of the business district early to-day. Two alarms were necessary. The Board of Trade Building and the Littlefield and G. D. Morse buildings on Merrimack street were badly damaged.

From lodgers in the Abbott Building, adjoining the fire, it was learned that an explosion occurred at 5:20 o'clock. This explosion was, it is believed, in the basement of the Floyd-Taylor Company, men's furnishers. The lodgers in the Abbott block were jarred by the explosion and hurried out.

Ralph Woodside, a restaurant clerk, saw smoke issuing from the Floyd-Taylor Company's basement windows and rang in an alarm. Fire Chief Gordon sent in a second and a third as soon as he arrived. It took the firemen three hours to subdue the flames.

FOSS AND ALLEN TOUR THE CAPE

BROCKTON, March 17.—Accompanied by ex-Representative James Sidney Allen, a strong Republican of this city, Eugene M. Foss, Democratic candidate for Congress in the Fourteenth District, left here to-day in an automobile for Provincetown, where both will address gatherings at the extreme end of Cape Cod. They will work up to Middleboro and finish there to-morrow night. Ex-Representative Allen's declaration in favor of Foss's candidacy in preference to W. R. Buchanan, the Republican nominee, has thrown consternation into the camp of the latter. Allen was one of Judge Harris's ardent supporters in the Republican contest. Allen predicts that Foss will carry this city. The Republicans are planning for a big rally here Saturday night, at which Senator Lodge and Congressmen Greene and Gardner will be the big guns.

"ENCHANTRESS" IN A RAGE IN COURT

VENICE, March 17.—Countess Tarnowska, accused of having planned the murder of her husband, Count Kammerski now into a passion on the witness stand to-day and flatly contradicted her counsel. Pressed for an explanation of other tragedies attributed to her powers of fascination, she denied having had the least responsibility for them and denounced Attorney Fedusch, her co-defendant, as a calumniator.

CALL LE BLANC GIRL AGAIN IN GLOVER CASE

Mrs. Irede Le Blanc was again called to the stand this afternoon when the Glover will contest was resumed before Probate Judge McIntire in East Cambridge. Irene is the eldest sister of Hattie, who is charged with the murder of Clarence F. Glover.

The girl was called to contradict Mrs. Lillian M. Glover as to the harmony that the latter swore prevailed in her home shortly before Glover was killed. Irene has already testified that Mrs. Glover and her husband were on unfriendly terms on the Sunday previous to the Saturday he was shot to death.

Mrs. Glover Aids Lawyer.

Mrs. Glover herself, is taking an active part in the examination of Irene Le Blanc. While on the stand Mrs. Glover testified that she knew English very imperfectly, but she has shown that she knows French well. That is the language in which Irene is giving her testimony. Once already has Mrs. Glover corrected the interpreter's translation of the girl's testimony.

When she was on the stand Mrs. Glover swore that her relations with her husband were pleasant up to the day of his death, following the "kissing and make-up" in the first week of April last. From Le Blanc's testimony had to do with the situation in the family on the Sunday before the Saturday that he was shot.

This is what the girl has sworn Mrs. Glover did that day:

Showed Signs of Enmity.

Called her husband a fool with an oath prefixed.

Declared that her husband was crazy.

Told Hattie and her sisters not to answer her husband because it was no use.

Did not speak to her husband.

Made disrespectful motions at her husband with her hands.

Called Hattie a fool for getting her husband a newspaper.

Glover did not eat supper with Mrs. Glover.

When the case adjourned until this afternoon the lawyers were arguing about an alleged threat that Mrs. Glover made to do Hattie bodily harm. Scott wanted to get the testimony in, but Elmore objected.

SNOW FLURRY COMES TO TOWN

A flurry of silvery snow minuted with the emerald decorations of Greater Boston to-day, but it was of such a light and fluffy character that it did not interfere with a full and free enjoyment of the great St. Patrick celebration, and the further event in South Boston of the anniversary of the day when the British decamped in such a hurry from Dorchester, preparatory to leaving for their homes across the sea.

It is raining along the Atlantic coast in the Jersey section and north of that there is a little snow. The Boston forecaster said there would be some snow off and on until evening. Then it will be colder and to-morrow, will be clear.

At Greenville, Me., it was six degrees above zero at 8 o'clock, but that was the chilliest section of New England. Down in Corpus Christi, Tex., it is sixty-six above. The weather is clear down in the sunshiny sections where the baseball boys are warming up for the season.

FT. BANKS SOLDIERS FIGHT A GRASS FIRE

People living near Ft. Banks, Winthrop, were given a scare about 1:30 p. m. to-day, when a sentry discovered a grass fire near that stables of Company 80, C. A. C., and fired three shots. The men turned out of the barracks on the double quick. The fire, which was on in grass back of the stables near the Boston & Revere Railroad was quickly put out.

TAFT PARADES WITH THE IRISH IN CHICAGO

CHICAGO, March 17.—The firing of the Presidential salute of twenty-one guns on the lake front announced the arrival of President Taft in this city at 7:50 o'clock, and officially opened the greatest St. Patrick's Day celebration Chicago ever has known.

The President was escorted to an automobile and motor heavy police guard the Chief Executive for the first time in history participated in a St. Patrick's Day parade. At that moment he became the guest of the Irish-Americans of Chicago. The mysterious presence of Emma Goldman and her having a room in a hotel which overlooked the line of the parade caused unusual activity on the part of the secret service men and city detectives.

After arriving at the Hotel La Salle the Chief Executive went to the presidential suite, being the first President to occupy the quarters.

There he received the endowment committee of the American Red Cross and following this was the guest of Chicago Newspaper Club, making an informal talk on the press.

The general interest in Mr. Taft's visit centred in his speech at the Auditorium Theatre in the afternoon. His address at the Irish Fellowship Club banquet to be along lines of the day's celebration. His afternoon address was on "Conservation."

Mr. Taft asked the members of the Red Cross committee to do something in the way of providing a permanent fund for the use of the Red Cross in time of emergency.

"You forget to provide a bright, sunshiny day," he said, glancing out of the leaden sky. "Chicago grows every time I see it."

While I am only one-quarter of the way through my term of office, I have learned more in that period than I ever expect to learn in the remaining three-quarters," the President told the newspaper publishers.

The entire day and evening, until Mr. Taft's departure for Rochester, N. Y., at 1 o'clock to-night, is crowded with events.

SNOW SPOILS GREAT PARADE

NEW YORK, March 17.—The weather did its worst to-day to spoil the greatest St. Patrick's Day celebration ever planned, including the march of 50,000 Irishmen. The day opened with a heavy fog, which, however, was so heavy that it took on a green tinge. That would have been well, but it changed to a driving snow storm. Weather Forecaster Starr had predicted a fine day.

In spite of the storm, the paraders began to assemble early at Forty-second and Fifth avenue, Archbishop Farley had promised to review the parade from the official stand to which the leading city officials were also invited.

The Ancient Order of Hibernians had charge of the parade in which the famous Irish regiment, the Sixty-ninth, was assigned the post of honor at the head. Every Irish organization in the city had appointed delegates to take part in the procession.

IRISH LEADERS SEND TOASTS FOR DAY TO AMERICAN FRIENDS

Sentiments for St. Patrick's Day sent to the American press, by mail or cable, contain greetings of good cheer and hopefulness for the Irish cause, from several of the leaders of the Irish Nationalist movement. Among them John E. Redmond, the Irish leader, Bishop O'Connell, one of the trustees of the Irish Parliamentary fund, T. P. O'Connor, the famous orator and journalist, and Stephen Gwynn, M. P. for Galway, a descendant of William Smith O'Brien the Irish revolutionary leader of 1848. All breathe a spirit of high hope for Ireland's future. Mr. Redmond says:

From every point of view, from the point of view of the politician of the democrat, of the constitutional lawyer and above all from the point of view of Irish Nationalist—the political situation at this moment is fraught with the highest interest and importance. Before these lines are in print the situation may have developed and entirely changed. Though we are surrounded by uncertainties and grave anxieties, still I feel that we Irish men have reason to be proud of the position into which our cause has emerged from all the disappointments and defeats and sacrifices and suffering of the past; and even if the worst should happen, and we have to enter upon a new period of active conflict with the present Liberal party, I have no fear whatever for the future. The very stars in their courses are working for Home Rule for Ireland, and it is now merely a question of time.

T. P. O'Connor pays a grateful tribute to the generosity of the Irish race in America, of which he was given such signal proof during his recent tour of this country in behalf of the Irish cause. The member for Liverpool says:

I need not say how much our movement was cheered and helped by the splendid efforts of our kith and kin and other friends in America in the mission with which I was honored by my colleagues, and recently in answer to other appeals. The gratitude of our people at home for the continual support their struggles received from their more prosperous race in the United States is boundless. Such action of one section of the race has influence on the race everywhere. The generosity of the Irish in America has led to an outburst of enthusiasm and of increased support for our people at home.

Bishop O'Donnell says:

The Irish cause has bounded to the forefront of politics. The Nationalist party is now seen to be also the party that can help the democracy of Great Britain to be masters and not slaves of the House of Lords. These are great days.

As I write, Mr. Redmond and the Irish party have won their way as regards procedure in the matter of dealing with the lords' veto. In a situation so full of hope for Ireland, but at the same time so delicate and dangerous, we may well be thankful that the national cause is so ably defended.

Stephen Gwynn, member of Parliament for the borough of Galway, writes:

Above all we are proud of our leader, who commands a far wider allegiance than any Liberal or Tory statesman—as American and Australia can prove. The struggle may be prolonged, but it has not to be fought by a starving people, existing upon the landlord's sufferance; and each year, with the new educational institutions founded through the country, should see us better equipped. And I believe that these new colleges, but above all that in Belfast, to which Protestant and Catholic are flocking together, will do more than any other agency to abolish the old nightmare of religious opposition—already half dispelled by Mr. Devlin's superb victory.

STRIKERS SEE A VICTORY IN PHILADELPHIA

PHILADELPHIA, March 17.—It was reported to-day that Senator Boise Penrose, at a Washington conference with State Senator McNichols, local organization leader, had taken steps that would bring about the end of the great strike within twenty-four hours. The State Republican leaders have been shown, it is declared, that unless the policy of indifference pursued by them in regard to this strike was soon offset by prompt measures for peace, not only the union men but the great rank and file of the citizens would sweep the Republican party out of office and perhaps give the strongest State organization in the country its death blow on the next election.

A director of the transit company today declared that the company will probably agree to take back the striking men and gradually reinstate them in their old positions.

The strikers demand in the event of reinstatement that they be given their old runs and the rights of seniority for previous service. According to the director who made the prediction, however, the prospects of a settlement are brighter than they have been since the strike began.

THREAT TO SUE SCARES BOSTON BUNCO GANG

Just as the members of the Boston bunco gang began to breathe more freely over the report that they could not be enmeshed in the net of the criminal law they were shocked and driven to cover again to-day by the news that civil suits to recover many thousands of dollars are to be brought against the more responsible of them.

Five of the victims of the fake faro game are ready to bring suits and developments of the most startling nature are expected.

The trial of such cases will expose all of the prominent Bostonians who have been mulcted, including city officials, business and professional men. It will spread the whole gigantic swindle before the public in a way that will leave no doubt as to just what has been going on in this city during the past few years.

It was said to-day by a man in close touch with the operations of the swindlers that a million and a half dollars have been obtained by the credulous people of Boston and other nearby places who thought they "had a good thing."

The report of the Federal grand jury is expected to-morrow. It is by no means certain that this body may not find a way to get after the swindlers, although so far Big Bill Kelliher is concerned his counsel has been told that the corpulent gentleman is not wanted by the United States District Attorney's office.

A new man has been mentioned in the case as a close friend of George W Coleman, the Cambridge bank wrecker. It is barely possible that he may figure more prominently as the case develops.

DRAPER HOLDING PLAN IS SHARPLY DENOUNCED BY SPEAKER WALKER

Speaker Walker of the House of Representatives to-day came out in direct opposition to Governor Draper's recommendation that the bonds of the Boston Railroad Holding Company be made legal investments for Massachusetts savings banks. The Speaker appeared before the Legislative Committees on Railroads and Banks and Banking, sitting jointly, considering the Governor's recommendations.

Walker's declaration that he disagreed with the Governor caused a sensation in the committee room. It had been believed all along that he was in harmony with the Governor on the railroad question. Now, in taking the position he has, he joins forces with the White Washburn insurgent forces in the House. In his address the Speaker declares that the Governor's recommendations are unsound. He said:

Disagress With Draper.

"I do not approve of the recommendation contained in the inaugural address of the Governor, to permit savings banks to invest in the bonds of the Boston Railroad Holding Company. These bonds are based simply upon the stock of the Boston & Maine Railroad guaranteed by the New Haven Railroad. In the estimation of investors they may be a sound and safe investment. There are many good securities, however, in which for sufficient reasons our savings banks may not invest. Savings banks under our law are not permitted to invest in the stock of railroad corporations.

"There is no valid reason to my mind why we should at this time make an exception to our general policy in favor of these particular bonds. It is not sound policy to make such exceptions to our savings bank law. The railroad situation in Massachusetts is not yet entirely settled. A competent commission has recommended that the financial condition of the New Haven road be investigated.

Favors Development.

"It is proposed to expend vast amounts of money upon the Boston & Maine system, and just what the immediate effect of such expenditures will be upon the dividend-paying capacity of that system is not perfectly clear. I do not wish to be an obstructionist. I wish to see that great railroad system developed.

"I believe in the legislation of last year granting a charter to the Boston Railroad Holding Company, for which great credit should be given to the Governor of this Commonwealth.

"We should let bygones be bygones, recognize that the question of unification is settled, and now, for the good of New England, we should meet these men half way, encourage and not discourage them. What we all want now is the development.

"But when we come to the question of investments for savings banks, we are not dealing with a transportation problem. We should consider in this matter the interests of depositors and their interests alone. We should be entirely known to our savings bank depositors that the investment of their money is made prosely and solely in their interest.

More Confidence Needed.

"With the savings bank situation such as it is to-day, it is doubly important to establish confidence and to do nothing to create distrust. If to grant to savings banks permission to invest in certain securities be incidentally of advantage to the company issuing the securities, well and good. But such incidental benefit should never be given weight in determining the main question. Are the securities in question a safe and proper investment for the deposits of the wage earners and of widow and orphan?

"Until this railroad situation becomes more settled, until the proposed investigation of the New Haven be completed, until the value of the bonds be more definitely established, and especially until those charged with the care and investment of our savings bank deposits, the trustees and the officers of the savings banks themselves come forward with some approach to unanimity and ask for permission to invest in these bonds, such legal investment should not be granted. We do not want our savings bank deposits to be used to bolster up any securities."

Bonds Safe, Says Bates.

Ex-Governor John L. Bates, attorney for the holding company, began the arguments in favor of the recommendation. He told of the formation of the holding company, and said there is substantially $24,000,000 of Boston & Maine stock back of the $20,000,000 of holding company bonds. Citing the New Haven's financial standing, he said that the road had outstanding $100,000,000 of stock, and that in its treasury there is $21,000,000 more. He declared that upward of $160,000,000 must be entirely wiped out before the bonds would lose the guarantee of the holding company bonds he specifically stated.

He called the attention of the committee to the fact that savings banks could safely invest in holding company bonds. Practically all of the savings banks, he declared, are allowed to invest in the bonds of New Haven stock up to 80 per cent. of its market value, and he cited numerous cases where he contended are inferior to the investment proposed.

Senator White of the Cape asked if the principal object is not to make a market for th bonds and if such a market would not be made if they are exempt from taxation? Mr. Bates said the bonds would furnish a better market, but it would not affect the justice of the claim that they should be made legal investments for the banks. He said it is an injustice to the bonds, as they represent a stock which is untaxable.

Mr. Washburn asked if Mr. Bates saw any constitutional objection to exempting the bonds from taxation, and he replied that he did not.

Defends the Plan.

Senator Tilkham asked if Mr Bates thought the New Haven should be favored because of the creation of the Holding Company and he replied that it is not sought to favor the New Haven, but the Holding Company should be favored, because it is for the best interests of the Legislature, but is nothing really so much as an agent in the development of the transportation interests of the State. The Holding Company bears new legal favors: it simply wants to be treated the same as any other Massachusetts corporation, for no other corporation holding Boston & Maine stock has been given upon it, for the reason that the Boston & Maine itself pays the tax.

Representative Nelson H White said he pass this legislation now would be but to make a beginning—that if the Attorney General, the Bank Commissioner, the Tax Commissioner and the Railroad Commissioners, because of their reports on the matter, which have not been acted upon. He thought the question is not whether the security is good now but whether it is financially sound, but whether the reports of the three commissioners of the State shall be disregarded.

Representative Nelson H White said he desires to make these bonds legal investments. Mr. White said he did not believe it could do so, because to indorsement by the New Haven can be legal, and it cannot be made so by legislation.

ALL SOUTH BOSTON JOINS IN EVACUATION DAY FETE

the password given by General Washington to his officers was "St. Patrick."

Banquet First Event.

After days of careful preparation the celebration really began last night with the annual banquet of the South Boston Citizens' Association in Bethesda Hall. The banquet committee was headed by Michael J. Mahoney as chairman. Representative William R. O'Brien of Dorchester was toastmaster. Divine blessing was invoked by Rev. Bro. Mortimer T. Toomey of St. Eulalia's church, City Point.

The guest of honor and principal speaker was General Jesse Sherwood, member of Congress from Michigan. Other speakers included Congressman Joseph F. O'Connell, Mayor John F. Fitzgerald and representatives of the State and city governments. The banquet was a tremendous success, and the lesson of Evacuation Day was drawn with many a modern and helpful application.

The observance of Evacuation Day proper began at 6 a. m. to-day with a salute from the Charlestown Navy Yard guns and the ringing of church bells. From that moment the entire peninsular district devoted itself to celebration of the holiday.

South Boston schools were closed for the day. Dorchester schools closed at noon. Open house and hospitality to the stranger within the district was the one word up and down the district. As many sons of South Boston as could be back home for the day were there. Flags and bunting were on every hand, and in every way the Evacuation Day of 1910 was made better than ever.

Bells Ring at Noon.

During the morning the celebration committee of the South Boston Citizens' Association, which had charge of the general program, rounded up final details.

At noon there was another loud ringing of church bells in honor of the time when the British found the place too hot for them.

After dinner, or luncheon, whichever

The Changing of the Tune

Now it is Erin wakes the music and the landlords dance the reel.

TO AN EXILED HIBERNIAN

HERE is a bunch of shamrocks
From old Ireland in the sea,
From one whose thoughts by night and day
Are constantly of thee.

The leaves grew in the magic ring
Of Moira's fairy fort,
Where you and I in boyhood's days
Were wont to romp and sport.

I plucked them when the sun rays fell
Full on the sleeping stems;
When raindrops glistened on each leaf
Like pure and purest gems.

I chose the hour and sought the place
So that the leaflet fair
Might wear the scent of trackless waste
A breath of homeland bear.

Might in the freshness of their sheen
To you, old chum, enjoy,
An old-time greeting, true and bright,
On this St. Patrick's Day.

The most wonderful sound-reproducing instrument of the cabinet type, combining the highest results of musical genius with a masterpiece of cabinet work—

The Amberola

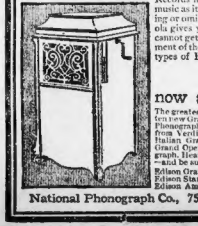
The newest Edison Phonograph

The Amberola is beautifully simple in outline, exquisitely designed and comes in either mahogany or oak, to harmonize with surroundings in any home. It has drawers in the lower part for holding 100 records.

It plays both

Edison Standard and Amberol Records

This is the Amberola's biggest advantage over all other instruments of the cabinet type—because Amberol Records play longer than any other Records made, rendering the best of all kinds of music as it is meant to be played, without hurrying or omitting important parts. But the Amberola gives you much of the best music that you cannot get in any other sound reproducing instrument of the cabinet type. The price is $200. Other types of Edison Phonographs, $12.50 to $125.



Leo Slezak now sings for the Edison

The greatest living lyric tenor, Leo Slezak, has made for the new Grand Opera Amberol Records for the Edison Phonograph. These Records include the great arias from Verdi's Otello, together with arias from other Italian Grand Operas. Slezak sings these Italian Grand Opera arias exclusively for the Edison Phonograph. Hear these new Slezak Records at your dealer's—and be sure to see and hear the Amberola.

ROOSEVELT PAYS TRIBUTE TO ST. PATRICK

By A. J. LAMBERT.

Special Correspondent of the Boston American with the Roosevelt Party.

Special Cable to Boston American.

KHARTOUM, March 17.—Colonel Roosevelt paid tribute to St. Patrick today by appearing for a new round of sight seeing and entertainments, wearing a sprig of shamrock in his buttonhole. He declared he never missed an opportunity to celebrate St. Patrick's Day and always wore shamrock.

"The top of the morning to you," was his greeting to all.

One of the events of the day was a luncheon given by the ex-President to the members of the expedition. It was his farewell to the men who were with him during his year in the jungle. Colonel Roosevelt made a speech that was filled with references to the dangers of the year's hunt and expressed his admiration for and gratitude to his assistants on the hunt.

The Roosevelts leave here late to-day by special train on their way to Cairo. They will make their first stop at Assuan.

At a dinner given in his honor at the Soudan Club, Colonel Roosevelt, in an informal speech referred for the first time after a year of silence in the jungles to American questions in regarding to the Panama Canal Colonel Roosevelt held the close attention of his hearers. In his references, especially to Wall street, he left most of them puzzled as to whether he was entirely in jest or partly in earnest.

"When I started for Africa," said Colonel Roosevelt, "there were some of my friends who were unable to dissemble their affection, particularly that section of Wall street which hoped 'every lion would do his duty.' I am happy to say that the lions failed.

"A certain professor proved conclusively when I started on my trip that it was impossible for me to get through central Africa. In the vernacular he had to 'cause a pain.'"

Col. Roosevelt congratulated the Egyptian government on the great work done in irrigation.

"Take the case of the Panama canal," he said. "At the initial stage I cannot say that I enjoyed the turmoil, but the work had to be done, and I am glad I had the chance of starting it."

The institute will be a university of art where the young will be taught all the higher handicraft free of charge.

CARNEGIE BARRED BY MRS. SAGE'S FOOTMAN

PASADENA, Cal., March 17.—Andrew Carnegie had a new experience when, accompanied by Walter Raymond, he went to the Raymond cottage occupied by Mrs. Russell Sage to pay his respects.

He walked to the door and knocked. The summons was answered by Mrs. Sage's colored footman. He opened the door just enough to admit his gray nose out, and slammed the door in the face of the philanthropist, thinking him either a reporter, charity solicitor or impostor. Mr. Raymond came to the rescue, calling through the wall, he stated that "Mr. Andrew Carnegie wished to call on Mrs. Sage."

IRISH, BUT NATIVE OF CHINESE LAND

NEW YORK, March 17.—A wireless from Ellis Island that drifted into the Ship News office inspired Rose Bugnie of the combination to take the next Merry boat to the immigration station. Wol Fee, an Irish Chinaman wearing a shamrock, had landed from the liner Baltic. It turned out the detained man did have a shamrock, but that he had no Mongolian blood. He proved that he was Dr. Charles J. Wolfe, native of China, of Irish parentage.

NEW MEDICAL DISCOVERY

For All Skin Troubles

A chemist who was convinced that the old method of using internal remedies to cure skin diseases was erroneous, has discovered that an extract from a particular part of a well-known tree possessed antiseptic and curative properties on the skin tissues. It was, however, found that this valuable vegetable extract was difficult to compound with other ingredients necessary to present it in a form convenient to use. After further investigations and experiments a method of special treatment was devised, resulting in a combination of ingredients possessing to a marked degree valuable therapeutic properties, the like of which has never before been produced. This important product is known as Cadum, since its introduction Cadum has cured many cases of chronic eczema and other unsightly, irritating, and distressing skin diseases, and this after other treatments have failed. Cadum stops the terrible itching of eczema at once, and heals the blood diseases with the first application. Its action is still more remarkable in less serious skin troubles, such as hives, pimples, blotches, tetter, itch, acne, ringworm, scaly skin, psoriasis, ringworm, rash, chafings, eruptions, sores, itching piles, scurvy, blackheads, scabs, etc. Many of the results effected by Cadum may be truly called remarkable. It destroys disease-producing germs, allays inflammation, and is soothing and healing to the skin. Trial box 10c.; large box 25c.

PRIEST ON BLACK HAND RESEARCH

CANTON, Ohio, March 17. The Rev. Dr. J. Adolph Cusumano has resigned the pastorate of St. Anthony's Italian Roman Catholic Church here to investigate the Italian situation in the United States in an effort to get at the root of Italian crime, particularly Black Hand outrages. It will require about four years. When the report of the findings is made to the Pope, it will contain suggestions for the remedy of grave conditions from a religious point of view.

EX-MAYOR GREEN PAYS HIGH TRIBUTE TO IRISH CITIZENS OF BOSTON

A tribute to the Irish race and its great rise in the last sixty years in Boston is given through the AMERICAN to-day by Samuel A. Green, "the grand old man of eighteen birthdays."

Mayor of Boston in 1882, intimate friend of Patrick A. Collins, Hugh O'Brien and John Boyle O'Reilly; noted author and publisher, hero of many battle in the Civil War, and to-day librarian and vice-president of the Massachusetts Historical Society, Dr. Green has seen many sides of the life of Boston in the last sixty years. It was at his suggestion that the name of Bishop Cheverus was given to one of Boston's public schools.

His latest expression on matters relating to the people of the Catholic faith is an utterance of the hope that the recent speech of Archbishop O'Connell on the duty of Catholics in politics may be printed and circulated so that all may get a chance to see what a real catholic idea of politics is.

By SAMUEL A. GREEN.

The Irish people of Boston were here before me by days. As I first remember them, fifty years rather few, but even then Boston was the centre of a prosperous Catholic community. Their Cathedral was on Franklin street and they had had some men who made a splendid impression on the community at large.

When I first began to practice in Boston I heard the people speak with high regard of Bishop Cheverus, who had worked here among them. He later died in France. I did not know him personally, but many of my patients did, and they all spoke of him with the highest reverence. And it was at my suggestion that the name Bishop Cheverus was given to one of the schools in Boston. I am rather proud of that.

Lauds Archbishop's Speech.

The rise of the Irish Catholic in Boston politics is rather modern. Not so many years ago they were still in a small minority and were not very active as political figures. I remember when we had a "native American" opposition to the Irish vote for Mayor of Boston. The designation is rather unique, but it meant exactly what the "Know Nothing" movement meant later. The party was made up of a group of illiterate men—men with one idea, and that a rather poor one—who did not wish to have foreigners come to this country, and if they did come to this country did not wish to have them vote.

The party did not last long. It was not killed, it just died. It seemed to collapse without any particular noise.

There be some talk always about the evil that the Irish and their descendants have brought into Boston politics. Those who know the history of Boston politics know that this is not true. They have had their evils as other people have had theirs. But the Irish in politics are coming out all right.

I liked particularly the remarks of Archbishop O'Connell at the Catholic Federation meeting last Sunday. I liked it exceedingly. It should be published and republished so that all the people may get an idea of what a truly Catholic idea in politics is.

"Honor" Was the Olden Keynote.

Political conditions have changed since my day. As I remember it, people went into politics in the forties and fifties for honor, for the glory of being among the elders. But now they go into politics for contracts, for the pennies that come from contracts.

But we cannot trace that condition to the fact that the electorate in this city are Irish or of Irish descent in the majority. Far worse conditions prevail in cities where no Irish race is to be found.

And besides, some of the ablest work ers can point to this city have been sons of Irish, or part Irish, parentage. Their work has done much to honor Boston and has reflected credit not only on their race, but on the city and their country.

Our oldest men and workers ten and twenty years ago were men of the Irish race. Patrick A. Collins was a credit to any race on any nation. He was an able man and an honorable one. He was a fine character as I can think of in the municipal history of Boston.

MAYOR FAVORS NEW FINANCE BOARD

The establishment of a new organization, modeled upon the Bureau of Municipal Research of New York, is favored by Mayor Fitzgerald, who says he will appeal to the public for funds to support such a body. The plan of the Mayor was announced after a meeting of the City Council, following an investigation of the city government methods employed here by Dr. F. A. Cleveland, one of the directors of the New York body.

GROWS REAL SHAMROCKS ON MAINE SOIL

GOULDSBORO, Me., March 17.—The efforts of Patrick Goss of Misery Point to grow genuine shamrock foliage and have it ready for use on St. Patrick's Day are at last meeting with some success, though he cannot get produce at all quantity, owing to the expense of providing cold frames and sashes to urge the plants along to early maturity.

Mr. Goss is a lobster fisherman and lineal descendant of one of the survivors of the wreck of the bark Stella, which went ashore on Misery Point nearly a century ago while on a voyage from Limerick, Ireland, to Boston. Among the wreckage which came ashore was a trunk containing a clod of earth in which were three or four shamrock plants pulled from the rich fields of Galway. These survivors were set out in the high, moist soil on the point by Mr. Goss's grandfather, who found that the foggy atmosphere near the Bay of Fundy was most agreeable to the shy and delicate plants. In the course of half a century the shamrocks had escaped from cultivation, and the creeping stems may now be found in rich pastures and fields along the rocky sides of the point.

As soon as Patrick Goss came of age he went to Ireland and spent more than a year in studying the habits of the genuine shamrock and investigating its manner of growth. He is sure there is only one kind of shamrock recognized by the old families of Ireland. This is the trifoliate juice of botanists, a very small plant with long, slender stems that grow best among damp and matted grass, where there is plenty of shade. Blossoms are sometimes found in rangiest meadow lands in Ireland in June. They are small and have a pale yellow tint. Mr. Goss says they never go to seed, but all the new plants are propagated from the bulbs, which take root as they run.

FALSE ARREST CASE DROPPED BY MISS BECK

Miss Sallie E. Beck, the complainant against Patrolman Samuel Sweetland, who was scatenced by Police Commissioner O'Meara to perform 240 hours of punishment duty instead of being dismissed from the department, on the recommendation of the trial board, is not satisfied that the commissioner used the best possible judgment in fixing penalty for the patrolman's action in arresting her on the unfounded charge of intoxication.

It was reported that Miss Beck had interceded with the Commissioner to save Sweetland from dismissal, on account of his having a wife and family, but this is not borne out by Miss Beck's comment on the outcome of the complaint.

When asked as to her view of the disposal of the case, Miss Beck said:

"I really have very little to say about the entire matter. I cannot help but feel, however, that Mr. O'Meara did not consider all the testimony in the case when he sentenced the officer.

"I do not feel that it would be right for me to say whether or not the sentence which Mr. O'Meara may choose to visit upon an officer for a given charge is lenient or severe.

"As to whether or not the punishment in this case is satisfactory to me, that is an entirely different matter.

"This has not been a personal matter with me. All I wished to do was to call to the offending officer's attention his acts in a civil way. The fact that I did not do so shows that the matter was not personal.

"I thought more of the possibilities in the case than I did of the case itself. It might have been that a woman who had the victim been a woman who was not known. Fortunately for the latter, and there is nobody who thinks I was intoxicated that night.

"I wanted to teach that officer and all the policemen of Boston a lesson. I think he has learned a lesson, because he has said before Mr. O'Meara that he thinks that the other policemen in the North End have learned a lesson in this case. Whether the other policemen throughout the city have learned anything I can't say. I am not going to do anything further about the case. I do not care to have any further publicity. I have altogether too much as it is, and I would not go through it again.

"I would like to know, though, how the evidence of the hearing before the trial board went to the Police Commissioner?

"There is one thing of which I am absolutely certain, and that is that the officer failed to tell the truth when he gave his testimony. I wanted to teach all of them a lesson."

FALSE NAMES FOUND ON "DRY" PETITION

CHICAGO, March 17.—One clue of the "wets" in the present prohibition campaign was revealed today when the liquor forces declared that more than 30,000 names appearing on the "dry" petition to get the saloon question on the ballot for April 5 are fictitious or those of persons not registered or otherwise disqualified to vote. Of the 30,000 worthless names, 2,000 are of an obscene character, such as "Fred Russo," "Theodore Roosevelt," "Rip Van Winkle," etc.

STORK AND CUPID BREAK RECORD HERE

All previous records in this city for the Stork and Cupid have gone by the board, according to the records for 1909, now on file in the office of City Registrar Mc-Glinchey.

In 1908 there were 7,708 marriages in Boston against 8,065 in 1909. In 1908 just 18,463 babies were born in Boston, and it is estimated that when all the returns are in this figure is likely to reach 18,500 for 1909.

O'MEARA'S MERCY IS "SADLY MISPLACED"

THE Boston Transcript publishes the following editorial comment on the action of Police Commissioner Stephen O'Meara in overriding the decision of a trial board of three seasoned police captains, who recommended that Patrolman Sweetland be dismissed from the force for wantonly arresting Miss Sallie E. Beck, a charitable worker, without any shadow of excuse whatever. O'Meara's action is, in effect, a license to the police to arrest any woman they please at any time and for no offence—YOUR WIFE, YOUR MOTHER, YOUR SISTER or YOUR SWEETHEART—without any fear of punishment. Here is what the Transcript says about it:

"If there were any offence which merits full punishment, it is that of false arrest in a district where the police are so powerful and the people are so helpless as in the tenement district of the North End. It has been urged against Police Commissioner O'Meara that when there was any question between a policeman and the public, it was the policeman who was likely to get the benefit of the doubt.

"Miss Sallie E. Beck, who in this case happened to be a person of some influence, was arrested under circumstances which at best may be described as outrageously ill-judged and which were probably based on her less-majestic toward a policeman.

"Miss Beck was a visitor of the benevolent associations of that district. What sort of judgment a policeman, who had his doubts in the case of a person of this sort, could possibly have in the case of a person who was mildly affected with liquor or even one with merely the excitable temperament for which the foreign population of that section is noted, beggars description.

"Mr. O'Meara finds as an extenuating circumstance that the officer 'has made many arrests.' With this case in mind such a conclusion is not to any reasonable mind conclusive.

"Considering all the conditions, the risks of attempting a complaint, Mr. O'Meara's 'mercy' seems to have been sadly misplaced."

RAW STEAK ISSUE IN GILL DIVORCE

A slow fire, which did not cook the steak quite as quickly as he expected it to be cooked, was the initial singe in the divorce proceedings which freed Enid V. W. Gill from Herbert S. Gill in the Probate Court.

Mrs. Gill testified that after a few months of married life her husband began to treat her cruelly, and one day left marks of his knuckles on her cheek. The steak incident was followed by the disappearance of her husband when he found that his socks were not darned, and when she was ill he found it impossible to bear with her, saying that there was not room in the house for a sick person.

"DROWNED" BOY WAS MERELY LOST

Little Joseph Silva of No. 84 Hudson street, and his chum, Michael Kelly of No. 82 Hudson street, caused much excitement when the little Silva boy came running home and told his parents that his chum had climbed over the railing of the drawbridge on Broadway Extension and fallen into the water. In the meantime an officer from Station 5 found the boy crying on the bridge. He told the officer that he was lost, and he was taken to the station where he was later found by his father who went there to report the supposed drowning.

FISH WHARF PLAN HAS MAYOR'S APPROVAL

The plan of transferring the headquarters of the fish business from T Wharf to one of the Commonwealth docks in South Boston has met with the approval of Mayor Fitzgerald, who has written Governor Draper, advising him that the city will pipe the approaches for sewerage and water and keep the highways in repair if the State will build the necessary streets leading to the docks.

MAN WITH $500 IN HIS POCKET MISSING

George S. Densmore, a well-to-do teamster, with offices at No. 43 Hartson avenue, and residing at No. 108 Draper street, Dorchester, is missing. Densmore was last seen Tuesday by Charles Daly, a teamster in front of Densmore's office. Densmore told him he was going to East Boston to buy a horse. Clayton M. Gilbert, a teamster in the employ of Densmore, says he believes that his employer had nearly $500 in his possession at the time. Friends of the missing man fear that he has met with foul play. Densmore is married and has a wife and a daughter who is fourteen years old.

CAPE LEADERS IN SPLIT OVER BUCHANAN

BROCKTON, March 17.—Failure of Chairman Charles Hatfield of the Republican State Committee to get into line for William R. Buchanan, Republican candidate for Congress in the Fourteenth District, and some of the leaders on the Cape have thrown a jolt into the ranks of the Buchanan supporters. A steam roller, with Senator Lodge as the engineer, is declared to be needed to overcome the apathy of the Republicans in the district. They fear a Foss victory.

On the Cape both ex-Representative Thomas Partleon and ex-Senator William M. Rye have bolted Buchanan. Partleon was on silver tongued Buchanan that during the Republican conference at Hyannis he refused to allow the Republican organization to pay for his dinner. He sat at the same table with Secretary Charles Groves of the Republican State Committee and shouted across the table that he intended to pay for his own dinner.

A whirlwind tour topped off with a rally under the auspices of the Buckland Town Committee in the city Buchanan was the program.

Five towns were represented at the rally, by virtue of the presence of the town committees of Hanover, Abington, Norwell and Whitman, as well as that of Rockland, all of them received invitations, as a conference held before the rally, to get out and start something to arouse interest in the Buchanan campaign.

The principal addresses made at the rally were those of Mr. Buchanan and Dr. Frank E. Wheatley of Abington, one of Buchanan's opponents at the caucuses a few weeks ago. Mr. Buchanan said that as yet he hadn't seen any of the dissension among the Republicans that his opponents had found.

Dr. Wheatley declared that he would support Mr. Buchanan because he had the nomination fairly, and there was no reason why any Republican should bolt the ticket.

Eugene Foss, James H. Vahey, Charles A. Hardy and Congressman Weeks, Republicans spoke at three big rallies in Taunton.

TO TEST TROLLEY EXPRESS SERVICE

An express trolley service by which business men, shoppers, and theatregoers can travel from South Framingham to the Park Street Subway Station in an hour and twenty minutes will be given a few of thirty days, beginning next Monday morning, by the Middlesex & Boston Street Railway Company.

WOMEN RUSH TO SEE NEW GOWN

If one has any deferred doubts about Spring's arrival a visit to the display windows of the great Henry Siegel Company will quickly dispel them. There is a display of color that anticipates nature's most lavish display soon to be painted in a thousand hues in woodland, orchard and meadow.

Within the great store one found something of particular interest in the new season's chanteeter costume. Rosmund's world-enthusing drama has profoundly modified the modes of the day, and the Siegel Company is quick to grasp the novelty in a thousand forms.

The chanteeter costume is displayed on a living model on the second floor. There all day women thronged. The note dominant is the red, the material is duchesse satin. The hat is a tremendous creation of the chanteeter red, made of yedda straw, with a turned-up brim following the general line of a Gainsboro. It is trimmed with the feathers and body of a small bantam rooster.

The gowns are shown in the same salon. The distinctive colors are tan, wistaria, mustard, bottle rose, and gray.

ILLNESS HALTS POISON TRIAL

The grave illness of Special Assistant District-Attorney Horace M. Hardy of Middlesex county, whose death is expected momentarily at his home in Arlington, is expected to delay the trial, assigned for April 4, of Mrs. Mary Kelleher, charged with murder in the first degree of six relatives by poisoning.

Mr. Hardy is stricken with pneumonia. Word was received at East Cambridge court house today that he was not expected to live until night.

Mr. Hardy is the son of Judge John H. Hardy of the Superior Court. He was formerly assistant to District-Attorney John J. Higgins of Middlesex. He resigned on account of pressure of private affairs, but, at Mr. Higgins's request, he became special assistant on the Kelleher case. He worked up the government case and questioned witnesses. He was expected to make the opening government argument at the trial and conduct the direct examination of government witnesses. He had the Kelleher case thoroughly in hand and, at present, was more acquainted with the details of it than anyone else on the government side.

STOMACH GAS, INDIGESTION, HEARTBURN AND HEADACHE GO.

Every family here ought to keep some Diapepsin in the house, as any one of you may have an attack of Indigestion or Stomach trouble at any time, day or night.

This harmless preparation will digest anything you eat and overcome a distressed, out-of-order stomach five minutes afterward.

If your meals don't tempt you, or what little you do eat seems to fill you, or lays like a lump of lead in your stomach, or if you have heartburn, that is a sign of Indigestion.

Ask your Pharmacist for a 50-cent case of Pape's Diapepsin and take a little just as directed. There will be no sour risings, no belching of undigested food mixed with acid, no stomach gas or heartburn, fullness or heavy feeling in the stomach, Nausea, Debilitating Headaches, Dizziness or intestinal griping. This will all go, and, besides, there will be no sour food left over in the stomach to poison your breath with nauseous odors.

Pape's Diapepsin is a certain cure for out-of-order stomachs, because it prevents fermentation and takes hold of your food and digests it just the same as if your stomach wasn't there.

Relief in five minutes from all stomach misery is at any drug store, waiting for you.

These large 50-cent cases contain more than sufficient to cure almost any chronic case of Dyspepsia, Indigestion or any other Stomach trouble.

$10,000 PRIZE BEAUTY DIES, RICHES GONE

MONTAGUE—Louise M. died on Tuesday of her residence, 164 Manhattan avenue.

NEW YORK, March 17.—This simple death notice appeared in the New York papers yesterday. It was written by Louise Montague herself a week before her death the day on which death would come being left blank to be filled in by the undertaker.

Few who read this notice knew that "Louise Montague, whose death was so simply chronicled was the woman who was once heralded far and wide over the country as the "ten thousand dollar beauty."

Louise Montague's beauty was for years the talk and wonder of America. Her name was the synonym for beauty and every where she went she was lionized about as petted and held court like a queen.

After the first rapture over her had subsided she sought the order of private life but a few years afterward went on the stage, because it was discovered that she had talents equal to her beauty.

$10,000 Prize Beauty.

She had a splendid soprano voice and sang dramatic ably, and so she appeared with Edward E. Rice's company in the "Corsair" and even became the star of David Henderson's "Sinbad the Sailor," and yet, perhaps, one of her greatest favorites that Broadway ever knew.

She was only a girl then of eighteen or nineteen. Adam Forepaugh, the showman, discovered her and determined to make her beauty a feature of his show. He advertised in 1878 that he would pay ten thousand dollars to find the most beautiful woman in America.

Interest was aroused all over the country, and the public were on tip toe as to the excitement. Finally came the announcement that the judges, after considering thousands of beautiful women, had decided on Louise Montague as the loveliest of them all.

Lost Her Fortune.

A great chariot was especially constructed, on which was an immense globe, and seated on this, gorgeously dressed, rode the young woman above a great sign which proclaimed in gold letters, "Forepaugh's ten thousand dollar prize beauty."

After a few years on the stage Miss Montague again retired to private life. She lived for a long time in a beautifully furnished house. But investments she had made turned out sadly.

The money she had earned in riding perched high on a golden chariot in horse dusty street parades, took wings.

REDMOND PASSES BOUQUET TO TAFT

CHICAGO, March 17.—A cable from John E. Redmond, M. P., congratulates the Irish Fellowship Club on its having President Taft as its guest of honor this evening. Says the Irish leader: "I warmly congratulate the Irish Fellowship club on the presence of its illustrious guest. It is one of the many signs that the people of Ireland have the sympathy of the whole civilized world, especially the American people in their supreme struggle to place Irish citizenhood on the same plane of freedom as the American. All Irishmen are proud of the honor America's President pays to its national festival."

SHIP A MEMORIAL TO NAME OF EMMET

Miss Anna Gallagher of this city has proposed a unique memorial to Robert Emmet, to be created by the subscriptions of Americans of Irish birth or descent, to take the form of a ship to bear the name of the Irish patriot. The craft, which is to be a combination of merchantman and steamship will ply between ports in Ireland and America, for the transportation of Irish merchandise and passengers. It is Miss Gallagher's wish that the ship shall be built in an Irish shipyard, and the workmanship be done only by Irish workmen, also the materials used must be the production of Irish manufacturers.

MRS. SUNDERLAND GETS RENO DIVORCE

RENO, Nev., March 17.—Beulah Stubbs Sunderland, daughter of J. C. Stubbs, general traffic manager of the Harriman lines, with offices at Chicago, was granted a decree of divorce on the grounds of cruelty. The case was a sensational one from doors. It was not contested by Sunderland, who is a nephew of the late Edward Regents of the University of Nevada, and Democratic national committeeman from Nevada.

NEW YORK CENTRAL MEN TALK PEACE

NEW YORK, March 17.—Representatives of 6,000 conductors and trainmen on the New York Central Railroad today again conferred with the officials of the line in an effort to bring about a settlement of the wage demands which threaten a strike, tieing up 27,000 miles of track. Assistant General Superintendent P. J. Crowley representing the road and the trainmen were led by C. M. Holliday and M. J. Slattery.

$1,000 BLAZE ON BIG COAL BARGE

A stubborn fire which started in the forward part of the coal barge Nebasinta at the Godfrey coal wharf, Milton, early today, burned for three hours and did damage that will exceed $1,000, before the blaze was finally extinguished the entire Milton department had been summoned in addition to aid from Dorchester. The barge is owned by the Philadelphia & Reading Coal Company. Captain Oscar Ferguson of the barge and the members of the crew were asleep at the time. They were awakened by trainmen at work near the barge who saw flames coming from the forward peak.

ENGLAND BANK RATE IS RAISED

LONDON, March 17.—The directors of the bank of England at their weekly meeting today raised the minimum rate of discount from 3 to 4 per cent. This action was caused by the continued foreign demands for gold, which seriously depleted the bank's reserves. These are now nearly $25,000,000 lower than at the same time last year, and prospective further withdrawals of the metal necessitated measures to increase the bank's holding.

JUDGE SCORES ELOPING PAIR

"A pair of young fools ran away and got married without any regard to consequences and then came home to live on the girl's parents until her father became disgusted and kicked him out—as he had a perfect right to do. The girl now has her eyes open."

Thus spoke Judge Raymond, after listening to a petition for a divorce presented by Mrs. Beatrice Prouty of Boston street, Dorchester, against her husband, Archibald, on the grounds of non-support. Judge Raymond reserved his decision.

REVOLUTION IN HONDURAS NEXT

NEW ORLEANS, March 17.—Honduras is on the verge of a revolution that will probably have a more sinister effect on the Central American situation than the Nicaraguan upheaval. Advices received here today declare that Americans are in jeopardy and that many of them, including the American minister, have been openly insulted. President Davila, attempting to protect them and maintain harmony, is opposed by the Congress, which he is vainly endeavoring to disperse.

NEW ALIGNMENT FOR FAR EAST

WASHINGTON, March 17.—The far Eastern situation to-day, as far as the United States is concerned, is more acute diplomatically then it has ever been before. Japan is fully determined to force the hand of the State Department, and within a short time Washington must decide on its final stand toward China. It is believed here that within a few months a new international alignment will have been formed, with Japan and Russia on one side, and China, the United States and Great Britain on the other.

AWAIT TAFT IN POLITICAL WAR

ALBANY, N. Y., March 17.—The contest for supremacy in the Republican party in New York and the pending of the investigation into bribery in the Legislature today hangs on the declarations of President Taft. In the belief that he would discuss the political situation or touch on it upon his arrival in his native city Saturday, the supporters of the Federal administration and Governor Hughes today rested on their oars.

The national Republican leaders since Chairman Timothy L. Woodruff defied them have not been idle, and the supporters of the Hughes policy have been working harder than ever laying their plans. Within a few days the war will be actively on.

Senator Joseph T. Newcomb of New York will be the leader of the Hughes advocates. Already the father of a consistent opposition calling for a wide and farreaching investigation of corruption, Newcomb is ready to press his demands.

BWANA TUMBO HAT ARRIVES

Is your wife going to have a Bwana Fumbo hat?

No, we don't mean a Chanteler hat. Anyone can have a Chanteler hat or Chanteler stockings or gloves or parasol. Chanteler is within reach of all.

But this Bwana Fumbo millinery thing is the very latest wrinkle. And we don't get it from Paris, either. Boston milliners are reported as concocting hats which shall be a glorious tribute to He Who Is About To Return From Africa.

You see, therefore, that the Bwana Fumbo hat will be ahead of the Chanteler hat. Boston has beaten Paris to the millinery wire for once.

According to the reports which have leaked out from jealously guarded millinery parlors, the Bwana Fumbo is the last word in jungle millinery. When Madame of Miss Boston wears her Bwana Fumbo you will see a pleasing structure of jungle grass, with imitation palms waving aloft. From between the spears of jungle grass will peer forth little elephants and rhinoceri and bevies and kangaroos and a lion or two, and maybe a whitefaced ape and a dingbat.

Boston loves its Chanteler, but O, your Bwana Fumbo!

FIRE IN THE LANGHAM.

Excitement was caused at the Hotel Langham on Washington street, South End, at noon today, by the discovery that smoke came in a downward stream that was on fire. Margaret Callahan, an employe, gave the alarm. The fire was confined beneath the lobby. The damage is not slight.

MISS SEARS AMAZES WEST

BURLINGAME, Cal., March 17.—Miss Eleanora Sears of Boston, the guest here of Francis J. Carolan at his famous Burlingame estate, has startled a whole countryside by her early rides far and wide, and she has brought from the East lessons in strenuousness which Western girls here are loath to follow.

Every morning at 5 o'clock, fair weather or foul, the blooded horses in the Carolan stables are brought to the house and a small cavalcade starts forth.

The rides have become so noted for need of endurance that the number has steadily swelled until usually there are now but four in the riding party, Miss Sears, Mr. Carolan, Miss Maud Boarn and her fiance, Arthur Rose Vincent.

Miss Sears' manish habit and her ability to ride straight have sometimes startled fences, brooks and every other obstruction without flinching, have made her the marvel of Southern California. The early morning rides she takes prior to fatigue her for every afternoon she is out either motoring or walking.

OPEN WAR IN LYNN ON ALL "SUIT CLUBS"

Watch and Ward officers are securing, and already have obtained, evidence which is to be used to drive that form of gambling known under the name of "suit clubs" out of Lynn. This illegal game takes over $25,000 out of the city each year. Because the business is of that nature, legitimate business, and the regular police force prevailing unwilling or unable to stop it, the Watch and Ward officers have taken it up.

HOLD WARREN IN $4,000 BAIL TO FACE POLYGAMY CHARGE IN KIDNAP CASE

After defying the Massachusetts authorities to find his children, Franklin H. Warren, alias Gordon Hazen, of Dorchester, was arraigned in the Providence Police Court today on the charge of being a fugitive from justice and held in $4,000, according to dispatches received in this city today. Warren pleaded not guilty before Judge Gorham in the Providence Police Court, and after the reading of the charge said to the court: "I decline to answer on advice of counsel."

Warren was represented by Lawyer Harry Stiness, who argued that a nominal bail be set, as the maximum penalty for polygamy, which charge is hanging over Warren's head, was three years in jail and a fine of $500. Chief-Horton of the Providence Detective Bureau, declared that Chief Watts, head of Boston police headquarters, had requested that Warren's bail be made the maximum, as he feared if it were small that the defendant would jump his bail.

Expects to Get Bail.

It was expected that bail would be raised this afternoon, and Warren was detained in the court house pending the raising of the requisite $4,000.

Mrs. Warren, who has been vainly trying to get her children ever since they were taken from her a fortnight ago, was in Providence today, accompanied by Attorney Jennings from the Boston law offices of Attorney Stiness, counsel for Warren. Attorney Stiness said this afternoon:

"This is a very delicate matter, and I wish to b exctremely careful in what I say.

"Mrs. Warren is here in my office, Mr. Jennings from Boston, her counsel, is also here. We are trying to come to some agreement in regard to children. Each parents wants them. I know where the children are now.

"A Boston officer left the court room here to-day, bound for the State House, Boston, to get requisition papers from Governor Draper of Massachusetts. We shall fight requisition for Warren. But if unsuccessful in that, we shall go to Boston and fight the polygamy charge there.

Inspector Farrell of the Boston police department applied to Governor Draper for extradition papers to bring back Warren to Boston to face the charge of polygamy.

Before appearing in court Warren declared: "I defy you to find my children. I won't go back to Boston. I'm an American citizen, and no hysterical woman can take my children and keep them. If I can't the children they belong to me. They are my bobbin, and no one can take them from me. The courts have said they belong to me, and that is enough. I don't know what they talk about when they say I am a polygamist."

Accused of Kidnapping.

Warren is the man who, it is alleged, went to the home of his mother-in-law, No. 45 Stanton street, Dorchester, and with the assistance of two hirelers carried away his two children, Phyllis, age 3 years, and Adrienne, age 4. The husband and wife are now pending in the Suffolk county divorce courts. Mrs. Warren has been ill since the "kidnapping." Friends told her story and of the treatment received from the police to Captain George A. Hall at the Dorchester Police station.

The Boston police have been hunting Warren ever since. They found him at Providence last night and arrested him on an indictment warrant which was procured by the grand jury at a special sitting in Boston. This indictment charges Warren with polygamy, a charge which is a new feature of the case.

Children Not Found.

After the arrest, Inspector Farrel failed to find the children.

Warren has been selling insurance in Providence.

"No one can show that I am a polygamist," he said. "I came here last Friday and I had a right to. We bear a great deal about this getting away with your own children, but I will you we have to do a remarkable stunt once in a while to beat out the women whom we get tied up with."

Warren said he knew he was followed up pretty closely by the police of Boston and Providence, exclaiming: "I escaped them for the time being, and had time to think it over."

UNCLE SAM GETS OUT A COOKBOOK

WASHINGTON, March 17.—The increased cost of living has prompted the United States Department of Agriculture to instruct housekeepers of the country how to make the cheaper cuts of meat palatable and appetizing, and to this end a manual of economy in meat cooking has been prepared, containing a variety of recipes and general information. "Economical Use of Meats in the Home" is the title of the manual, which may be procured by addressing a request to the Secretary of Agriculture. The department officials state that cheap cuts are most difficult to prepare.

MANY SEA CAPTAINS AT BRAGDON BURIAL

Many old members of the Boston Police Department and a number of sea captains and pilots attended the funeral today of former Deputy Superintendent of Police Oliver F. Bragdon, who died in Daytona, Fla., where he had gone a month ago for his health. Funeral services were held from the harbor master's old house, No. 5 Falcon street, East Boston, being conducted by the Rev. A. D. K. Shurtleff, pastor of the East Boston Unitarian Church. Burial was in the family lot in Newton. Mr. Bragdon had been connected with the police department for thirty-six years, and was well known by seafaring men and those having large shipping interests.

ANNUAL RETREAT FOR STUDENTS ENDS

The annual retreat for the students of Boston College, which began last Monday, closed to-day at the 8 o'clock mass in the Immaculate Conception Church, Harrison avenue, the celebrant being the Rev. George C. Butler, S. J. The retreat was given by the Rev. Jerome Doherty, S. J., of Woodstock College, Maryland, a former president of Georgetown College. William P. Grant, S. J., conducted the exercises for the high school.

PHYSICIAN'S TRIAL IS AGAIN CONTINUED

Dr. A. S. Gibson of No. 24 Boylston street, charged with illegal medical practice, was before Judge Burke in the District Court to-day, and his case was further continued to March 25 by request of his counsel, D. L. Baker. The chief government witness, Ethel Nesbit of Fort avenue, Dorchester, was required to furnish $100 bail. The arrest was made by Inspector Mitchell of the Lagrange street station February 28 upon complaint of a physician who was called to visit the patient.

SOMERVILLE GIVEN EXPLOSION SCARE

A near panic resulted in the Highland avenue section of Somerville, when three soil-waste covers over an electric wire conduit were sent sailing through the air, accompanied by a shower of concrete and earth, following an explosion of gas. No person was injured, but several houses in the vicinity were somewhat damaged by flying concrete, and a number of windows were broken.

'NOT RUSEAU,' SAY WITNESSES FROM NEW YORK

The first of the witnesses coming from that part of New York State where James Delbert Ruseau lived for years, who are to give the closing testimony in the Russell will hearing, to-day took the stand in the East Cambridge Probate Court and contradicted the testimony of witnesses from the same locality who have testified that the claimant in the case is Ruseau.

The first of these was Ira Kingsley, from Messina, N. Y. He is a cousin of Wesley Kingsley, who, testifying for the respondents, in the case, declared that the claimant was James Delbert Ruseau. The cousin to-day said that he had a conversation with the person witness in November, 1909, in which Wesley Kingsley told him that he did not remember "Jim" Ruseau. Attorney Simpson for the claimant then said:

"I don't suppose that I will be allowed to put this question, but I would like to have it on the records that I am willing to show that this witness knew James Ruseau very well, talked with him many times, and that he is willing to swear that this claimant is not James Ruseau."

Judge Lawton replied that he would not allow the question to be put, but that he would allow what Attorney Simpson was willing to show to go on the records.

Edwin W. Emery, another resident of Messina, was the next witness. He told of a conversation with Wesley Kingsley, in which Kingsley said that no Ruseau could relate the story of his life as the claimant had done. This statement of Wesley Kingsley made after the claimant had been interviewed by both men.

Judge Lawton adjourned the hearing at noon until to-morrow morning, when Albert H. Hamilton, the handwriting expert will testify in behalf of Daniel Blake Russell.

William E. Hingston, the Boston handwriting expert, who has testified at many of the famous New England murder trials, will also take the stand for the claimant to-morrow. He will be followed by Daniel Blake Russell, who will testify in his own behalf and then the famous case will be closed.

BOSTON AUTHOR IS A "PIRATE," SAYS PREACHER

James H. Stark of this city, author of "The Loyalists of Massachusetts," was not even original when he issued his diatribe against our Revolutionary forefathers, according to the Rev. John R. Atkinson of Trinity Episcopal Church of Elizabeth, N. J.

The New Jersey clergyman charges Mr. Stark with wholesale "scribbling" of the work of another man. Mr. Atkinson declares that Mr. Stark has borrowed liberally—and without giving any credit—from a lecture and subsequent pamphlet by Frank Bergen, now counsel for the New York Public Service Corporation.

Mr. Stark calls his book "The Loyalists of Massachusetts, or the Other Side of the American Revolution." Mr. Bergen, so Mr. Atkinson says, delivered a lecture about twelve years ago on the subject; "The Other Side of the Declaration of Independence." This lecture title is nearly the same as the second part of the title of Mr. Stark's book.

Mr. Bergen's lecture was delivered at Westminster Chapel for the benefit of the coal fund of Mr. Atkinson's church. Subsequently it was published by Mr. Bergen, and was printed in pamphlet form in 1895. It was commented upon favorably by such historians as W. E. H. Lecky, John Fiske and Professor Sumner of Yale. The pamphlet was twice reprinted, and, according to Mr. Atkinson, has many readers still.

After speaking on the popularity of Mr. Bergen's pamphlet, Mr. Atkinson continues:

"One of its latest and sincerest friends —though secret one—is James H. Stark. In 1898 it was so impressed by it that he has expanded the pamphlet into a book. The book of 500 pages. He has boldly taken Mr. Bergen's idea and not improved it.

Then Mr. Atkinson quotes a long paragraph of introduction to the pamphlet which is printed nearly verbatim in Mr. Stark's book.

BIG RAILROAD STRIKE NEAR

CHICAGO, March 17.—A strike of 30,000 men employed on the western railroads hangs by a thread and the government mediators, Martin A. Knapp and Charles P. Neill, are confronted by the most difficult problem every presented in wage disputes. This fact was made evident to-day before the conferences of representatives of the Brotherhoods of Locomotive Firemen and Engineers, of the General Managers' Association and of the two Federal agents began.

"Our committee has small hope that any settlement will result from the efforts of the government mediators," said President Carter of the firemen, "but we are willing to try.

"We cannot arbitrate with the firemen on the question of rules to govern the engineers," said O. L. Dickerson of the managers' association. "The engineers belong to a different organization which has an agreement with the railroads. Nevertheless we believe that a satisfactory settlement will be reached.

Best Prescription for Kidney Troubles

Of all medicines and mixtures for the kidneys, liver or bladder, the one given here is probably used more than any other. Mix together six ounces good pure gin with one-half ounce fluid extract buchu, then add one-half ounce murray compound. Mix these well together and take in doses of one to two teaspoonfuls three times a day after eating. The ingredients can be had of any good druggist.

The above prescription quickly and permanently cures lame back, rheumatic pains in the joints, highly colored urine, scanty, frequent or burning urination, dizziness, pains in the head, all of which are well known signs of trouble in the kidneys and other urinary organs.

Woman's True Friend

Experimenting with new and untried medicines is foolish, and often dangerous. It would take a medicine more than forty years, to prove itself so universally good as Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. During all that time it has been woman's favorite medicine—a restorative tonic, uplifting and invigorating the nervous and discouraged and giving them the final touch of perfect health.

Women use Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription in preference to all other advocated medicines for it contains no alcohol or habit-forming drugs—is not anything like advertised, secret, or patent medicines—does not claim to be able to do impossible things.

THE ONE REMEDY for women devised by a regularly graduated physician of vast experience in woman's ailments, and adapted to her delicate organism.

THE ONE REMEDY good enough that its makers are not afraid to print its every ingredient on its outside wrapper.

You can't afford to allow yourself to be overpersuaded into accepting any secret nostrum as a substitute for this honest square-deal non-secret medicine. Don't do it. No honest druggist will attempt to cheat you in this way. He who does should be rebuked and avoided. Doctors prescribe Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription for their worst cases because they know what it contains and know its ingredients to be of the very best.

It's well now and then to gently cleanse out bowel germs that breed weakness, cause foul breath, loss of appetite, dizziness and headache. Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets keep bowels sweet and clean. Recommended by druggists because of their purity, goodness, and active gentleness.

FOR RESULTS ADVERTISE IN THE BOSTON AMERICAN

TART ANSWER TO MR. MELLEN

PROVIDENCE, March 17.—President D. F. Sherman of the Providence and Dudley son railroad made a reply to-day to President Mellen of the New Haven interests in behalf of the Grand Trunk, which is seeking an outlet at Providence.

He makes special note of Mr. Mellen's words that the Grand Trunk reminds him of "an impecunious aspirant for honors." He says the New Haven has 2,000 miles of railway, the Grand Trunk 5,000 already being operated, and 8,000 more in course of construction. The Grand Trunk had built as much new road last year as the New Haven had acquired in twenty years, more than 600 miles."

PRIZES FOR NAMING BOSTON "IMMORTALS"; MUST BE LIVE ONES

Who do you think are the forty Boston men—live ones—most deserving of having their names enrolled in the Hall of Fame?

The BOSTON AMERICAN offers prizes consisting of a first prize of $10, a second prize of $5 and five prizes of $1 each, for the best lists.

Can you name Boston's FORTY IMMORTALS—live ones?

The State Street Trust Company of this city has issued a very handsome brochure giving a list of Forty Immortals—men of the past whose achievements would entitle them to places in Boston's Hall of Fame—if Boston happened to have such a temple.

Dead men are not nearly as good as live men, as everybody knows, and while the AMERICAN has no fault to find with the list prepared by the State Street Trust Company, this newspaper is much more interested in "live ones." For that reason readers of the AMERICAN are asked to submit the names of men now living in Boston or the metropolitan district whose achievements entitle them to places in a Hall of Fame that may or may not be built some of these days in this city.

Send in your lists. No reason to tell all the facts why this, that or the other man is entitled to a place in the galaxy of immortals, for that would make the articles too long and the AMERICAN could not publish as many as would be the case if only the names, with few explanations, were given. Select any names you please. The men must be living, and of course have achieved something in some direction that entitles them to fame.

For the best list of forty names the AMERICAN will pay $10. For the next best, $5, and for the next five best lists $1 for each list will be paid. Send letters to "Live Ones" Editor, the American, 90 Summer street, Boston, Mass.

The names given by the State Street Trust Company of its Forty Immortals follow:

Given Up to Die with Kidney Trouble

The Experience of Zenia Simonson, of Mount Carmel, Illinois, Is Convincing Proof of the Great Merits of Warner's Safe Cure as a Remedy for Kidney Trouble and Bright's Disease. A Sample Bottle of This Great Remedy Will Be Sent Free to Any Reader of the Boston American Who Writes.

In the following letter Mrs. Simonson tells in her own way how serious was her condition and how she was cured with five bottles of Warner's Safe Cure: "I am glad to tell what a wonderful medicine Warner's Safe Cure is. It saved my life. I had kidney trouble so badly that it turned to Bright's Disease and I could not lie down—I had to kneel down on pillows for three weeks, also passed a great deal of blood. The doctor told my family I had but a short time to live. My children got a booklet from your office and I read the testimonials of people who had taken Warner's Safe Cure. I told my husband that was the medicine I wanted, as it fitted my case. He bought me five bottles. The first night I suffered so I took almost as much as half a pint. Next morning the doctor came and said, 'You are better,' and I told him Warner's Safe Cure did the work for me. The five bottles of Warner's Safe Cure restored me to health. I have recommended it to others. I know of three other cases which have been cured by Warner's Safe Cure when I recommended it after doctors had given up all hopes of curing them. They are well at this writing."—Mrs. Zenia Simonson, Carmel, Ill.

If you suspect that your kidneys are diseased, and discover that your urine is cloudy and milky, send us a sample for analysis and we will tell you frankly the result of our discovery. Sufferers will be glad to know that Warner's Safe Cure will surely relieve and cure the most distressing cases. HARVARD YOUTHS WORK IN SUBWAY

The poor Harvard student has found another way of making money to defray his college expenses. This time the Cambridge subway is his boon and many a term bill will be paid next June from the coffers of the Boston Elevated Railroad.

Donning overalls, the Harvard student of limited means has gone down into the great ditches along the subway to rub elbows with swarthy sons of Italy, taking their time and incidentally the coin of the realm offered by the railroad. Work of this sort seems to have no terrors for the self-supporting student who is glad enough of the chance of settling his college dues without working all summer.

"JOBLESS" ACTORS HELPED BY BELMONT

NEW YORK, March 17.—When Miss August Belmont, who was Miss Eleanor Robson, abandoned the stage to wed the financier, her company, which had played in "The Dawn of a To-morrow," was disbanded. Just before the Belmonts sailed on their honeymoon Mr. Belmont sent checks to all the actors who had thus been forced out of employment. The business manager received $2,000 and the other checks were substantial. It is said that Mrs. Belmont on her return from abroad will be a Kentucky neighbor of Mrs. Peter Burden, formerly Viola Allen, another likelier star who became the wife of a noted horseman.

MOTHER IS FRANTIC OVER A LOST SON

The police of all the Massachusetts cities and towns were to-day requested to join in a general search for Frederick Irving, Wakefield foundry worker, who has been strangely missing since Tuesday afternoon. The white-haired mother of the missing man is frantic with grief and anxiously awaits her son's return at the home in Winn street, Wakefield. Tuesday afternoon Mellgrey left his post at the foundry, wearing his factory clothes and has not been seen or heard from since. Mellgrey is described as being forty-seven years old, five feet nine inches in height, shining 160 pounds and dark complexion.

ASKS $2,000 FOR KEEPING WIFE HAPPY

NEW YORK, March 17.—Dr. Mark L. Knapp, the stomach specialist, has begun a Supreme Court action to collect $2,000 from his father-in-law for keeping his wife happy for two years. The father-in-law is Adolph Schlesinger, who collects rents from 150 tenement houses in this city. Knapp took to court a unique bond which set a premium on marital happiness. It included that when Bertha Schlesinger became his wife in December, 1908, her father stipulated in writing to give him $2,000, provided the young father was not divorced during the first two years of their married life.

"My dad likes to move around and to have something doing all the while.

"I grin he will want to take all this publicity off my shoulders," sighed the young cargo manufacturer, who is interested by the attention which his engagement to Miss Eleanor Alexander has attracted.

A., King's Daughters and other societies have signified their willingness to co-operate.

LOVE LIKE THAT OF JOHN RUSKIN

SOUTH BEND, March 17.—The death of Charles Spencer Wade at Elkhart has brought to light a story of the undying love that of John Ruskin. Wade died of a broken heart. Two women were devoted to him. His first wife allowed him to divorce her that he might marry her friend. This sacrifice and her devotion reached for her his affection. Unable to remedy the wrong he pined away. Realizing the end was near, he sought the home of his first wife and died in her arms.

The American officers of the league donated the money to-day in a letter addressed to Mr. Redmond's speech last night at Newcastle-on-Tyne.

BOSTON AMERICAN SPORTS

TY COBB TRAINS WITH DOVES IN HOT PRACTICE

By W. H. ROSS.

AUGUSTA, Ga., March 17.—The Doves began St. Patrick's Day by banging the ball all over the lot. Manager Fred Lake opened the regular training season at Warren Park this morning with the whole squad out on the lot and started right in on the job of turning out a ball team which will deliver the goods at the Columbus avenue grounds and at all the other National League battlefields this season.

He was much pleased after an inspection of the local park. "It is the best ball field," said Fred, "I have ever seen in the South with the exception of the one at Little Rock." In fact, the local grounds are in better condition than they have ever been before, in the spring. They were not only dry and well mown, but the diamond is covered with green sward. Most every diamond in the South is what real players call "chips." That is bare ground. In this section as a rule there is no attempt to grow grass except in the outfield. But Augusta players prefer a grass diamond, as it is the kind they do business on after the ball rings for the ruckus season.

The Powers Are Pleased.

Both Manager Lake and President John C. Dovey are greatly pleased at the looks of the boys who have signed to play with the Doves this year. They are a fine looking lot of colts, and the bosses couldn't help out giving them deserving glances.

No longer ever lined up a more willing company of ball players than answered the roll call today. There was not a man on the team who wasn't anxious to get busy. It was in striking contrast to the conditions existing here as regards the Boston Club for the season's pace. Nobody tried to get to the bench and the park, wide and deep as it is, was none too large for the players who were trying to get the kinks out of their muscles and legs that full long capacity.

It is a new team this year. Bill Sweeney is the senior member in time of service, they be. Harry Smith, George Graham, Cecil Ferguson, Tom Turney, Rich White, Fred Beck and Herb Hooper were here last to train last Spring. There are eighteen new men on the roster and they are all youngsters. They are all fast and they all seem to have class.

Ty Cobb Joins Doves.

After Lake, who rode out to the ball park with Ty Cobb in the latter's auto on the day of arrival, had seen his men voluntarily at work he could not help feeling a little pleased. He admitted that it looked as if he had some good material to begin with, and he had a chance to get a line on the speed of his boys, for Cobb went out in the field dressed in a Detroit uniform and acted as spectator.

Ty is fighting fast already. He hits from an open with his Augusta club for about a week, and is beginning to hit his stride. The Augusta pitchers have had about ten days' work in the weather and Turney the boy on the plate, is faced several times. Graham, Beck and Ferguson did not show up over well on the stick in the practice games with the Athletics, but they found his curves and speed to their liking before the game was half and Head is out for fair. His average for the day looked about .350.

Lake's wards all that any club could pay big money for. Fred Lake's forecast on the Georgia Peaches:

"I hope they are rolling a trend of smoking tobacco named after the Detroit fielder. It is selling too.

"He is a business man here now, with a sign of his own, Cyrus E. Cobb, on the main street of the village. There will be a lot of new cases to be tried in Augusta a week from Saturday here, between the Doves and the local team for Cobb is going to cover left field for Augusta as he was the position he occupied when he made his debut here in professional baseball.

"There is a local legend that the manager of this team was going to "scout" Ty, but he had a good chance to sell him for $25, and I guess a few on the propensity of some managers to size up a boy right out of the bushes.

Excursion to Games.

Railroads are going to run excursion trains to Augusta on the day Cobb plays against the Boston Nationals. All around this section of Georgia, and in a big slice of South Carolina, there is wild desire to see Ty in action.

All the Doves are in first-class physical condition, and Skeeter Shaw is far from being fat, is carrying more surplus tissue than any other man on the squad.

"It isn't going," said Lake, "to take long for this team into shape to play ball.

Nobody can predict what kind of a team Fred Lake is going to turn out this season, but he says he will fight off the fact that the bunch that reported to him in Augusta has more ginger at the post than any team which has worn the Boston baseball uniform in years. The team starts in with pep and confidence for their new manager. He will not have to drive them.

No word has come from Manager Stallings as to the game between the Doves and the New York Highlanders. But Lake said: "We're here to play the New York team if Stallings wants to bring them on." Joe Medwick, formerly of the Giants, and his Newark team traveled from Washington to Danville, Va., on the same train with the Doves, and he told Lake that he was sorry he could not have a chance to send his hired men p against the Bostonians.

PITCHER JOE WOOD IN RARE FORM TO TWIRL ON CALL FOR RED SOX

By A. H. C. MITCHELL.

HOT SPRINGS, Ark., March 17.—It is not a sure thing that Joe Wood, the Red Sox kid, will be ealled upon to pitch. He is ready whenever Donovan says the word, but the manager may want to hold him in reserve for games later on, when the Cincinnati players get a line up the road from the Red Sox park. The club will turn it into a practice grounds and exert a grandstand for baseball. Joe is to remarkably good shape.

He got in condition faster than any member of the pitching squad. He did not get here until several days after the first divisions of Red Sox reported Hot Springs, but he rounded in with surprising rapidity. His team mates say he could go into a championship game today and make good. He has already shown all the old time speed for which he is famous.

Leroy and Ehmke are also ready. Ehmke says his arm is fifty per cent. stronger than it was this time last year. He had a good workout before the game yesterday.

Lewis is a Slugger.

Several things stood out in that first battle that are worth recording here. One is that Duffey Lewis is a slugger. He hit a home run over the centre field once that would have been a home run on any grounds on earth. It was one of those Jake Stahl specials. It is also evident that the fleetest outfielder in the world combines batting power with it. It is also evident that Joan L. Tarbe has picked up a pearl of the first water in poor Mr. Lewis, and they Manager Donovan can keep him off the regular team is something that is puzzling the war correspondents here, not to decide as guarding Lewis over himself.

From present indications, Mr. Harry Hooper will have to look to his laurels or Mr. Lewis will take that left garden away from him. Of course, Speaker will be the regular centre fielder when he reports.

By the way, where is Mr. Speaker? He was due Tuesday night according to a letter received from the player by Manager Donovan.

Another remarkable feature of the game was the first base play of Hugh Myer, that recognized candidate from the Coast. Hap didn't expect to play the bag, but Donovan decided to allow Stahl to get in the game until he is over his soreness. Besides we Donovan's second string, but the former Worcester boy was suddenly taken ill at noon and had to go to bed. That left only Myers to cover first. Donovan thought he was an outfielder until some of the California men told him that Hap was a star first baseman. The long fellow went to first and put up a game that would have done credit to any man in either big league. On that exhibition alone it looks as though Donovan must keep him on the team. He is too good a utility man to be farmed out. He picked a pear thrown out of the dirt, reached a mile in the air for with checks, caught a ball thru fifty feet and gracefully reported himself like a grand ball player.

Griffith Makes Deal.

Manager Griffith on behalf of the Cincinnati club closed a deal last night for a piece of a Red Sporting property, and now a mile up the road from the Red Sox park. The club will turn it into a practice grounds and exert a grandstand for baseball. Next year the Red Sox will have their own grounds exclusively, while the Reds will get in trim on their new park. It is expected that a series of games between the two clubs will be arranged the same as this year, to be played on the new Cincinnati grounds, which will be built to accommodate a large crowd.

Hot Springs was never so crowded as it is just now. The hotels are fully overcrowded. The city is white owned, the government has just instructed its smelter department to make a tour of the Tarpowon watering places, such as Carlsbad, and Rathenheim for the purpose of making a report to the Government, the object being to make Hot Springs the finest health resort in the world. In the course of a few years this city will be an entirely new place and its fame will spread far and wide.

The Cincinnati Club proposes to be in position to "rep the cake" with the help of the Red Sox. There is no doubt that the tremendous expense of a club's training trip could easily be met if Griffith's scheme goes through.

TRAINING CAMP NOTES.

Harry Bradley, who was suddenly taken ill at noon yesterday, is out again. It was bronchial trouble.

Manager Bill Dahlen of the Brooklyns has mailed his terms to Willie Keeler and hopes to land the former New York American star. Keeler was given his unconditional release and made a free agent by the New York Club, so he is free to sign with any club he desires.

The Business League of Hot Springs will get the receipts of today's game between the Brooklyns and All Stars to be played at Whittington Park. The All Stars will have the services of Charlie Smith, Harry Bradley, Harry Niles and Pat Donohue of the Red Sox. Griffith will lead Paskert and a couple of pitchers, while O'Neil, Bescher, Long, Dale, Hyatt and Hemphill will also play.

All the baseball players in town will be in the St. Patrick's Day parade to-day. They will dress in uniform and ride in automobiles.

All the boys are wearing shamrocks in their buttonholes and green neckties today. They are a present. Every member of the Red Sox squad, war correspondents and all, received green postal cards from "Xuf Col," who has taken several trips with the Red Sox.

If Niles plays with the All Stars against the Brooklyns Jack Thoney may get a chance to shine in today's game with the Cincinnatis.

JOHNSON HAS EVEN CHANCE SAYS RYAN

CHICAGO, March 17.—Jack Johnson heavyweight champion, has an even chance with Jim Jeffries, according to Tommy Ryan, retired middleweight champion, and the latter will back his claims by training the colored pugilist for his coming battle. He helped to teach Jeffries and he believes that he will be able to find his new pupil a winner over the former one. He said today:

"I am not going to undertake to teach Johnson how to box. He is a master of the fine points of sparring, but I can tell him a whole lot about Jeffries's style, and by the way, Jim has but one system of fighting and that is to hide behind his brouch. He has followed that so long that it will be impossible for him to change. He will have to give up his favorite tactics to a certain extent, for he must go in to win and win quickly.

When asked whether he thought Johnson would win because his opponent would not get fit, Ryan snapped out a negative answer.

"I want to be understood in this matter," said he. "I am of the opinion that Jeff will be in good shape for the go, but then the question arises whether he ever could have whipped Jack. Jim has hard workers and will train right for this contest. He has gone about things in the right manner to get into shape. He has taken nearly two years to it and will climb over the ropes in fit condition to wage battle.

"I am of the opinion that the battle will be a question of endurance as both men are too strong to lose quickly. Of course, I am of the impression that Johnson will win. I must say that he will outlast the other fellow.

"I think now that Johnson will win. After being with him in training for two weeks I can tell for a certainty whether or not he will get the long end of that $101,000 purse. There is but one thing more I want to say about this contest. Don't let any one tell you that Jeffries came out of retirement to regain the championship for the white race.

"He signed for this fight because he needed the money. His defending the honors of the caucasian people is the best joke of the age, for should he win he'll retire and who'll be champion then. No one but Johnson, as there is no one in the world beside Jeff who has a chance with him."

BIG AUTO MEET AT READVILLE

By J. C. KERRISON.

The committee having charge of the affairs of the Bay State Automobile Association is considering the advisability of holding a big race meet at the Readville track on Memorial Day next. The Association has secured the necessary sanction from the American Automobile Association, and Brewster holds an option on the use of the track for that date. There is reason to believe that the committee will decide in favor of a race meet, as before such events have always proved financially satisfactory to the organization, and as more next fall than ever before it is bound to prove attractive to those who delight in following the game.

There is a strong desire on the part of certain of the local dealers to bring about the holding of a twenty-four-hour track contest, but the feasibility of such a race is doubted by the great majority. Twenty-four-hour races have always proved successful in New York, Chicago and other cities, but they have never been tried in this city. Should such a contest be held there would be no difficulty whatever in securing entries from some eight or ten of the leading makers of cars that have heretofore figured conspicuously in such long drawn out contests.

William B. Innis, president of the Studebaker Bros. Company of New York and a member of the board of directors of the parent Studebaker Company of South Bend, Ind., says that he has owned one of any plan made by the big South Bend automobile and wagon firm to acquire any automobile fatalities, as well as to avoid spoils. Mr. Innis says he thought the report that the Studebaker Company was contemplating the purchase of one or more motor car plants in the United States was a mistaken one, as he was sure he would have some knowledge of the matter if such a plan was under consideration.

BRITISH SPORTS TO SEE JEFFRIES FIGHT

SAN FRANCISCO, March 17.—The coming battle between Jim Jeffries and Jack Johnson will be attended by a party of Englishmen of high social prominence, most of them being members of the British Parliament, who have already arranged for a special train to carry them from New York to San Francisco, as well as to Reno, side reservations. According to railroad officials the Earl of Rosebery, former Premier of Great Britain, is to head the party, and his fondness for the game is one being well known. The Earl himself is a proficient boxer and his desire to see the big fight has aroused the interest of nearly one hundred other Britishers.

MOVING FILMS OF JEFF CAMP

SAN FRANCISCO, March 17.—Another means of gathering money for Jeffries has been discovered. Several moving picture concerns have made propositions for pictures showing Jeffries in his training camp. These pictures are to be exhibited all over the United States before the fight.

Jeffries will pick up some profit on them and, incidentally they will be a big boost for the fight itself.

To the $60.00 Suit Customer

Did you ever stop to think that you are the cause of high-price tailoring with your slow-paying methods? If you were accused of buying clothes on time, how you would jump! But let me invent this phrase: "You buy careless." The tailor you trade with needs your business; but still he does business on small capital, and when you carelessly put off the payment for your suit till later you make it hard for him to discount his bills; therefore you have to pay for his credit accommodations. "What has that got to do with me?" Well, nothing. But I am explaining to the high-price tailors in a series of letters how Mitchell, the Tailor, can make clothes cheaper than they can. As I go along I will also explain how my head cutter (I employ 12 others equally as good) finds my store a better one than the high-class Beacon street establishment he left to come to me to cut $7.75 instead of $60 suits; and I give you my word of honor, he uses the same shears.

To the customer who wishes to look well I appeal. My store has more styles than the $60 tailor—from the sedate gray to the fancy Mustard Brown, from Shepherd Plaid to plain blue serge. I am fully prepared to meet the most fastidious. A visit will convince you that with my facilities I can make a suit to your order in 48 hours; or if you are in no hurry I will have it finished for Easter.

BOSTON AMERICANS DOUBLE

GREATER IRELAND

By MARY BOYLE O'REILLY.

Written especially for the Boston American.

If there is one national characteristic more Celtic than another it is the passion for learning. To safeguard education was the reason for Ireland's last and longest struggle—to provide book knowledge for their children—the first privilege thought of in the emigrant's new home. The Irish, with their innate, or racial, aesthetic bent, cultivated imagination, dramatic taste and literary capacity by literature and song.

In days on the misty horizon of written history a poet travelling up and down the land took with him a band of students, teaching as they went.

Most people now know that in the so-called Dark Ages learning of all kinds found its natural and safest home in Ireland—the famous school of the west.

But Irish education never lost sight of the national idea, never—from the gatherings at Tara—former to stir the people to their common inheritance in a scholarly and spiritual life. And it was because of this that to study in Ireland finally became treason to a foreign king.

Under penal law, a Catholic Irishman could not go to the university, keep a school or send his children to school. It was treason to teach a countryman the alphabet; transportation to teach him to write. And these iniquities were statute law for decades. A Catholic had neither the rights nor the duties of a citizen, because it was held high treason to be a Catholic. It was imagined that a silent siege, starving out the defenders of a nation, would make less noise—and cost less money—than a series of attacks with gunpowder.

From that day Ireland became a world nation, a country without visible boundaries, whose exiled sons were in their love and loyalty to solve the great historical problem. Fast as emigrant ships could carry them, the population sailed away, down the shining path that each day's guiding sun opened into the west.

The best brain and muscle of the country, men and women in the full vigor of life, the hope of the future, carried their energy, their faith and ideals to other Irelands under western and southern skies.

They were poor, pitiably poor, for to have remained rich during centuries of such history were the greatest reproach a native family could incur.

But despite the political myth so long exploited they were neither vicious nor lazy. Twice before had Erin poured her people over the seas. In the mighty missionary crusade of the sixth century, and the great trade movement of the Middle Ages, and now—in their bitter need—younger nations welcomed the exiles.

When they had learned in newer lands the self control desired from duty, the self respect that grows of power, and won success from opportunity, the dear country of their faith was the first to profit.

St. Patrick's Work for Ireland

Written for the Boston American

By MARGARET DESMOND

He who took part in the shaping of Ireland's destiny was born before the close of the fourth century. His father, Calpurnius was a Briton and a Roman citizen. His home was in the village Bannavem, close to the western sea.

Calpurnius was a christian deacon and his father, Potitus, was a christian presbyter. Patricius, the boy of Calpurnius, was educated in the christian faith. At the age of sixteen Patrick was taken prisoner by a band of freebooters, who infested the seas, and carried him into Ireland.

The barefooted slave lad, who tended his flocks by the wild mountains of Antrim, of the immortality he was to carry to Ireland.

There cannot be the slightest doubt of the existence of St. Patrick.

It is true the Irish annalists have interwoven the story of his life with much barefaced legend of an incredible kind. But his own "Confession," so-called, puts in his claim of authenticity. I prove that he did a work for Ireland such as no man since his day has been able to accomplish.

The now thriving town of Ballymote was not then in existence. But along the banks of the Bridd water, the poor slave boy must have often wandered.

Here he tells that a great change came over him, and "I gave myself up to the service of God. After six years of slavery he ran away from his master, and making his way to the seacoast, obtained a passage on board a boat which took him back to Britain.

He could not remain idly at home. A great cry for Ireland took possession of him and in voices he could hear the call, "Come over and help us."

He was not deaf to the heavenly vision. He did return and became the great apostle of "The Island of the West."

The shamrock became a sacred emblem through St. Patrick's use of it as a symbol of the sublime mystery of the ever blessed Trinity in the presence of the Ard Righ and chiefs of Tara—the three leaves on one stem.

It were vain to tell the names of those who, since the day of St. Patrick, shed lustre on their native land in art and science, poetry, literature, religion, at the bar, in the senate, on the hearth, on the quarter deck and the battle field.

The most important sources for St. Patrick's life are contained in a manuscript known as the Liber Armachanus, preserving in the library of Trinity college, Dublin.

The Awakening

Comes with a whisper of waking,
Cometh a quiver of birth;
The wonder primeval is taking
Its way with the earth.

There's a stirring of sap in the bushes,
A flicker of gaiety in the air,
A marvel of bud life that pushes
From branches still bare.

Busied are birds with the mating;
Wordlands no longer are dumb;
Bruinous, violets awaiting
A message to come.

Here mid the din and the aching,
Here in the fog and the doubt,
Cometh a whisper of waking,
Out from the struggle that wages,
Out from the sterile and sore,
Forth where the wonder of ages
Worketh once more.

"Kitty of Coleraine"

By NELL BRINKLEY

Copyright, 1910, by American-Journal Examiner

ILLUSTRATION OF AN OLD FAVORITE

"When she saw me she stumbled, the pitcher down tumbled, and all the sweet buttermilk watered the plain"

As beautiful Kitty one morning was tripping
With a pitcher of milk from the fair of Coleraine,
When she saw me she stumbled, the pitcher down tumbled,
And all the sweet buttermilk watered the plain.

"Oh, what shall I do now? 'Twas looking at you, now,
Sure, sure, such a pitcher I'll ne'er meet again.
'Twas the pride of my dairy! Oh, Barney O'Leary,
You're sent as a plague to the girls of Coleraine!"

I sat down beside her, and gently did chide her,
That such a misfortune should give her such pain.
A kiss then I gave her. Before I did leave her
She vowed for such pleasure she'd break it again!

'Twas hay-making season—I can't tell the reason—
Misfortunes will never come single—that's plain—
For, very soon after poor Kitty's disaster,
The devil a pitcher was whole in Coleraine!

His Bargain Is a Different Proposition

By KENNETT HARRIS

The way in which a womans' skin is strange as evident,
The trick is generally done by knocking off a cent.
The dearest-priced two-dollar skirt that's hung upon the line
Becomes at once as cheap as dirt when marked one-ninety-nine.

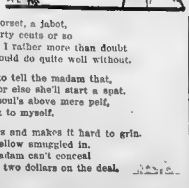
It's most mysterious to me that gracious womanhood
Can never miss a chance to be a penny to the good;
That she will fairly mob a store that has a bargain sale
Of something that she wants no more than toads require a tail.

And then the foolish trash she buys from that big bargain bilk!
The buttons and the books and eyes, the tape and sewing silk.
The cheese cloth, lawn and gingham stuff you see her paw and pick!
I'm jiggered if it's not enough to make a fellow sick.

If I should see an evening wrap, a corset, a jabot,
A shirtwaist or a dusting cap for thirty cents or so
That I would break my neck to buy, I rather more than doubt
I'd reason they were things that I could do quite well without.

I've found, though, it's of little use to tell the madam that,
She'll make some frivolous excuse, or else she'll start a spat.
I let her go her reckless way. My soul's above mere pelf,
And if I've anything to say, I keep it to myself.

But here's the thing that sort of jars and makes it hard to grin.
I lately bought some fine cigars a fellow smuggled in.
An even hundred cash I paid, but madam can't conceal
Her scorn, although I'm sure I made two dollars on the deal.



Widow Machree

By SAMUEL LOVER

Widow Machree, it's no wonder you frown,
Och hone! Widow Machree;
Faith, it ruins your looks, that same dirty black gown,
Och hone! Widow Machree.
How altered your air,
With that close cap you wear—
'Tis destroying your hair,
Which should be flowing free;
Be no longer a churl
Of its silken black curl,
Och hone! Widow Machree.

Widow Machree, now the Summer is come,
Och hone! Widow Machree,
When everything smiles, should a beauty look glum?
Och hone! Widow Machree.
See the birds go in pairs,
And the rabbits and hares—
Why even the bears,
Now in couples agree,
And the sowre little fish,
Though they can't spake, they wish,
Och hone! Widow Machree.

Widow Machree, and when Winter comes in,
Och hone! Widow Machree;
To be poking the fire all alone is a sin,
Och hone! Widow Machree.
Sure the shovel and tongs
To each other belongs,
And the bottle earns songs
Full of cordial, also—
Yet alone with your cup
Like a beggar you sup,
Och hone! Widow Machree.

And how do you know, with the comforts I've towld
Och hone! Widow Machree,
But you're keeping some poor fellow out in the could?
Och hone! Widow Machree.
With such sins on your head,
Sure your peace would be fled,
Could you sleep in your bed,
Without thinking to see
Some ghost or some sprite,
That would wake you each night,
Crying "Och hone! Widow Machree!"

Then take, my own love, darling Widow Machree,
Och hone! Widow Machree,
And with my advice, faith I wish you'd take me,
Och hone! Widow Machree,
You'd have me to desire
Then to stir up the fire,
And sure Hope is no liar
In whispering to me
That the ghosts would depart
When you'd me near your heart,
Och hone! Widow Machree.

A Prima Donna's Views

MISS ALICE NIELSEN WRITES OF THE PITFALLS OF GRAND OPERA

To-day Miss Alice Nielsen discusses the motives of the student of grand opera and advises those who seek wealth to seek it in some other profession. She warns aspirants of the horde of incompetent teachers and impressarios who cheat young singers.

By Alice Nielsen

ALICE NIELSEN

Important to a girl's consideration as to her art is her exaltation of that art, of its dignity and its demands upon her, above all consideration of money. The question of how soon she shall be earning money must not enter into her thought. Not that she shall set any light commercial valuation upon her ability. Let her services be well recompensed, but see that the work first of all is worthy of her and worth doing well for its own sake. Then an equitable compensation is honorable and necessary; if not, she buys the engagement at the expense of her art and of herself.

First of all a girl must be made to understand what will be required for a career, and whether or not her equipment can meet those requirements. We have discovered many of the demands which a career makes upon her and some necessary points in her qualifications as well. Now are these adequate?

Musical Imposters

Up to the present time girls who were not sure of themselves, who were immature in mind and body, ill prepared and often ill advised, have had to go abroad to find out, to be preyed upon by hordes of alleged teachers of voice, specialists and other musical imposters who infest every large city. Many and plausible mountebanks they are indeed superb exponents of arrant nonsense, the very high priests of the most heinous charlatanism in the world. Their motto is the let-doctor upon some investment was, it may be, would extend the scope of his professional career, or compass the plaudits of a second accompanying a great singer for a second season, elects to undertake for himself the development and up-building of the perfect human voice and impeccable piece of mechanism in the human throat.

It has long been my ambition to found a workable if musical art here in America, for the benefit of the scores of our girls who are annually participating a career in opera which, by being in their own country and within reach of their relatives and friends would save them the enormous expense, the disappointments, the heartaches and the loss of health and happiness which so many of them undergo in the endeavor to find abroad what they believe it too late to prepare for something else. It may be that she can become a singer. Now, she may not like that, but it is no measure to be able to sing the operatic parts in any one of twenty or twenty-five operas in three languages, and one might better be a good shoe salesman than a bad prima donna. Opportunities have been making in this country for a girl to find out by actual test what she would do in such song recital or in operas but she has had no way of proving her ability as opera without going abroad, and paying handsomely to debut in some European—usually Italian—opera house, and let it here be added there is no reason why an impresario, with the patronage of his house to see to, should undertake the expenses of an unknown singer's debut without charging her for it. The appearance is worth everything to her and in any else is making it.

Appeals for Help

The wife of our Ambassador in England has a fund for American girl students who come to her for help to continue their studies. She says to them "Here is your ticket, go home." I myself am often so when I go to Paris, London and Italy with people from the hopeless for me.

This word to parents and guardians: There is not a single European capital where etiquette could permit a reputable family to send out a sweet lovely daughter unprotected into the world. Yet, strange, when an American girl is sent abroad, roused upon its streets, mystified with the same fire, on she is, a stranger at home there are many who deem it their conscientious duty to approach and arrogate unto themselves certain rights. The fault lies with parents, for their consent obtains long before permission is given you, the girl, by parents or guardians. Too many of you have been family ignorant, and have viewed the truth too late.

(In the next article of the series Miss Nielsen speaks of the debutantes and the stage.)

You could tell Campbell's Tomato Soup with your eyes shut.

You would know it by its appetizing natural flavor and delicate seasoning; by its aroma; its smoothness, richness and satisfying "body". Then open your eyes and you would recognize its fine color. All these are distinctive qualities of

They make it "different" and superior. They make it worth your while to insist on Campbell's.

THE CONFLICT OF LOVE AND FAT

The average man will "jolly" with the stout girl; but he steals glances over her shoulder at that Miss Slender. He would sooner hold the hands of that latter in a fortuitous silence than really enjoy himself with the other. Such is the power of line. Just a line—from chin to toe, or nape to heel—that's all. But it rings the merry marriage bell.

Fat women should not repine—but reflect—their own lines by means of that phenomenal—the Marmola Tablet. No exercising or dieting is necessary. Simply take one tablet after each meal and at bedtime, and in a little while the overplus of fat—the coarseness of flesh—will disappear. The figure will become alight enough to permit of a maidenly contour, a new outline being fashioned with secret and sure. Then thirty—if not younger.

Although Marmola does often take off one formula a pound, quite fat a day, they are quite harmless, being made of the famous fashionable prescription by Dr. Marmola, 36 to Pt. Ex. Lea Avenue, 37 to Peppermint Water. Come a goody, even those are safe. Only the fat—for no fat—not even a wrinkle or stomach a fat will follow their use, except the fruit reducing those and all druggist's or by mail from the Marmola Co., 189 Farmer Bldg., Detroit, Mich.

Spring-time Gowns Make Late Opera Appearance

By ELIZABETH ELLIOTT.

All fluffs and frills and redolent of Spring was my lady at the opera last night. In the very rustle of her flowerlike gown one felt the glad rush of the on-coming season.

How did she look and what did she wear? Bless you, she looked—well she simply outlooked herself on any previous occasion.

It was a new gown and then—for the general opening and the display.

If gowns could speak—and they surely do in a way—the one worn by Mrs. E. V. H. Thayer, Jr., would have sung with the birds, "Spring is here." It was of the newest chantecler satin, made in the most approved of chantecler styles.

In fact, that winsome young matron was chantecler from the crown of her prettily done coiffure, through which was woven a braid of chantecler chiffon forming a chantecler spray at the side, to the top of her shapely little chantecler shoe.

She was the most notable figure in the house, and more than one envious glance followed her as she promenaded through the foyer.

Thayer Box Party.

Mrs. Nathaniel Thayer, who entertained several of Miss Sally Thayer's young friends at dinner in her Fairfield street home and brought them on with her to the opera, was stately and distinguished in white satin, embroidered in pearls.

Miss Sally Thayer looked handsomer than ever in a gown of white chiffon and white satin in tunic effect, and the decolletage outlined with torquois blue velvet.

Her guests were the winsome, golden-haired Mary Josephine Amory, who wore a lovely gown of white satin, made with a tunic drape of chiffon embroidered in gold and piquant, vivacious Margaret Stackpole, also in white satin but with a particularly striking tunic drape of chiffon, thickly studded with brilliants.

They made a particularly interesting trio as they emerged into the foyer after the first act to greet Mrs. Quincy A. Shaw, 2d (Vincen Mitchell), who has just returned from an extended stay in Palm Beach and who, with her becoming coat of tan and heightened color, looks far more like a debutante than a matron.

She wore a becoming gown of delft blue satin, the bodice of which was completely covered by a network of gold. She came with her mother-in-law, Mrs. John Silsbee Lyman, who was in black lutted lace.

Mrs. Harry Stackpole, who was a guest in the Nathaniel Thayer box, was in black petted chiffon over black satin.

Mrs. Edward D. Brandegee, who has just returned from Bermuda, was in pale pink satin and diamonds, and as this was her first appearance in public since her arrival in town, she was kept busy acknowledging greetings and receiving callers.

Mrs. Francis I. Amory, who has appeared at the opera but a few times this Winter, was a guest in the Herbert Sears box and was charming in deep blue velvet and gold lace.

One of the most charming and picturesque young girls there was Miss Leslie Bradley, whose pretty blonde coloring was shown to the best advantage by the clinging gown of raspberry satin.

Miss Rosamond Bradley was also in raspberry satin, and they had as their guests the Misses Katherine and Rose Skidmore-tall, Miss Katherine in pale yellow and Miss Rose in white.

Mrs. Allan Entertains.

Another handsome girl was Miss Mary Fay, who sails early the coming month for Europe, and who was in pompadour silk and pale pink chiffon.

She was with her distinguished mother, Mrs. H. H. Fay, who wore black velvet and diamonds.

The most strikingly handsome young matron there was Mrs. Jonas G. Clark, who was a guest of friends, and wore black velvet trimmed with lace.

Mrs. Bryce Allan, who entertained several guests in her box, was in deep pink satin with tunic of silver.

Mrs. Edwin A. Shuman was in white satin and diamonds, and Miss Susan Thayer in black satin trimmed with black jetted lace.

Miss Dorothy Lawson, who came with her father and step-mother, Mrs. Arnold Lawson, wore palest blue satin, with a cluster of pink rose buds on the corsage.

Mrs. Arnold Lawson was in moss green velvet and a green paradise plume adorned her coiffure.

Mrs. Whitney in Gray Lace.

Mrs. Oliver Ames was a distinguished figure in pale pink satin, with tunic of spangled chiffon and fringe of pearls, a diamond dog-collar and a diamond tiara were her jewels.

Mrs. Henry M. Whitney, who was in gray lace over rose pink satin, had with her her debutante daughter, Miss Josephine Whitney, in white lace over pink.

Mrs. Arthur Cabot was in white satin, as was also Mrs. Alden A. Thorndike.

Mrs. John L. Gardner, in black satin and a unique head dress of pearls and gold and several other things, was the cynosure of attraction in the main floor foyer as she paced and chatted animatedly with Manager Russell.

Mrs. F. Lothrop Ames wore a distinctly Spring like gown of pale pink satin veiled in chiffon and a dog-collar and tiara of diamonds.

Another uniquely handsome matron, Mrs. H. Sumpter Potter wore an imported gown of delft blue satin, over which fell a tunic of some tinsel drops of gold net, edged with gold embroidery. A wide band of diamonds formed a bert-dark girdle.

Mrs. Stanley P. Clemence was in pale blue satin, embroidered in pearls. Mrs. W. Watts was in white satin; Miss Emily Peebe in gray chiffon and Miss Amy Thorp in blue.

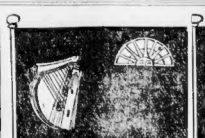
CHRISTIANITY GAVE GOLDEN HARP AND SHAMROCK TO IRELAND'S FLAG

The Irish flag as it was 500 years before the Christian era—A golden sun on a field of green.



With the coming of Christianity a golden harp was added and the half-sun left to pacify the non-Christians.

The flag of St. Patrick, as raised at Tara Hill in the year 432.

The flag of the Christian era, the shamrock being added.

The Irish flag of the tenth century.

The flag previous to the union with Great Britain.

THERE has been much diversity of opinion and traditional quotation regarding the original color of the Irish flag. The first flag of Ireland was blazoned with the sunburst, and as the peoples of remote ages took their colors from the most striking colors of the earth, sea, and sky it is quite possible, as some assert, that the first Irish banner was blue—the color of the sky or the long waves from which the sun seems to rise and sink.

If is more likely, however, to have been green, emblematic of the Green Isle, with sunburst added to the colors of the illustrious people who raised the first flag on Erin's soil, showing their Asiatic origin and their emblem of worship, they being followers of Zoroaster, or Fire Worshippers.

There was a tribe of people who inhabited Ireland more than a thousand years before the Christian era. But who they were or whence they came is absolutely unknown. They were few in number, savage in disposition, and easily subdued. They were partly exterminated by a colonial colony who became so numerous that the former inhabitants were reduced to a state of serfdom.

Emblem For Each Tribe.

But although the Celts became the rulers of the soil they had no characteristic banner, each tribe having its own emblem, until the arrival of the Milesian colony from the grand city Miletus, in Asia Minor. Their flag was soon accepted by the Celts, and it is generally conceded that all the different Kings and Princes who afterward reigned and warred with each other clung to the green flag shown through the centuries of wars and tumult, leaving Erin's flag, if possible, greener than ever.

Those Milesians from the then powerful city of Miletus and other colonies soon essfully traded with Crete, Africa and Spain, and at last landed in Erin, bringing to that country the knowledge of literature and the elements of superior enlightment.

During the first year of the Christian era the Irish flag was ornamented with the golden harp of Tara, on which as many of the people remained unconverted to Christianity, half of the sunburst was blazoned on the flag. The harp seems to have been heard for the first time in Ireland during the first year of the Christian era. It was introduced by the famous Tinosthenes, a celebrated musician and poet, a descendant of Tinosthenes of Miletus.

The harp became the music of all classes, while the God of David was generally accepted, and the Christian harp was enshrined. The Fire Worshippers.

Last of Paganism.

There is no place in Ireland that is so hallowed as Tara, where on Easter Sunday of the Christian era in about the year 432 St. Patrick, or Patricius, was requested to deliver a sermon before King Laoghaire princes and serfs at Tara Hill. All nation and corruption was abandoned by the chiefs and nobles, all agreeing to meet in peaceful amity under the Christian banner. St. Patrick attempted to define the Blessed Trinity to the venerable assembly, Father, Son and Holy Ghost. Three in One, in vain. He picked up a sprig of shamrock and showed the assembly three leaves on one stem, and they believed the sacred mystery and unanimously raised the sun, the last emblem of pagan Ireland, from their flag in honor of St. Patrick, and tradition proves that the wealth of shamrocks that was woven around the harp was white in remembrance of the white robes worn by the Apostle. And as a matter of history the flag, with a green ground, white shamrock and harp, remained unchanged till the tenth century.

On Good Friday there was a great battle in the north. It was the tenth century. Brian Boroihme was the sovereign of all Ireland. The Danes were gaining great power in Ireland. They had crowned their King of Dublin. The majority of the Irish people under the leadership of King Brian determined to strike the Danes from the soil. Brian sounded the bowels of war and all the princes and nobles rallied around their warrior King.

One of the daughters of the King had designed and embroidered in tapestry with yellow silk a beautiful banner, which she presented to the King's own regiment, and under that precious gift on the following day the forces of King Brian were led to victory, but the King was killed in the hour of retreating. Danes while on the battlefield thanking God for the success of his cause.

The flag remained with green ground, golden harp and shamrock until January 1, 1800, when the union with England was consummated. At 12 o'clock the royal standard of Great Britain and Ireland was hoisted on Dublin Castle, and a royal salute was fired from the battery in Phoenix Park that announced to Ireland that her independence was over.

Society Pays Tribute to the Church To-day

By ELIZABETH ELLIOTT.

EVEN with the constant departures for the South and for Europe there are still enough of the fashionables left at home to keep the social ball rolling at fair speed. There are any number of events scheduled for today which will occupy the time and interest of our fair maidens. Among them is the seventy-third annual sale of the Ladies' Missionary society of Trinity Church which is held in Trinity Parish House from 10 a. m. to 5 p. m.

The proceeds of the sale will be used to pay the missionary expenses of the Trinity Church Home for the Aged, Lebanon, which is open from 10 a. m. and tea from 3 to 6.

Among the society women actively interested are Mrs. Frederick B. Sears, Jr., who has charge of the fancy tables; Mrs. John H. Storer who presides over the apron tables; Mrs. Francis H. The third lecture of the Trinitarian Conference will be given by Dr. Paul Rominus, under the auspices of the Cercle Francaise, in L'Universite de France, on the subject of new lecture hall in Cambridge this afternoon at 4 o'clock. The first one of the series will be given on Tuesday, March 22d, at the same hour.

A religious drama in Ireland on the days of the Druids is presented by a select cast at Boston College Hall tonight. This is the first time in the history of Boston that Gaelic has been used on the stage and has been presented in the hall of that institution.

The play is under the direction of Miss Mary B. Ryan, who is also the author. The proceeds will be donated to the building fund of the O'Connell memorial of the new Boston College.

A special performance for children will be given on Sunday, March 15 at 4 p. m.

The committee in charge consists of Owen F. Hayes, chairman; Mrs. D. J. Sexton, secretary; Rev. James I. Maguire, S. J., treasurer, and a general committee of over 200 prominent society people of Boston and vicinity.

TODAY'S STOCK MARKETS; FINANCIAL NEWS

STATE ST. NEWS FOR INVESTORS

The Bank of England has advanced its minimum discount rate from 3 to 4 per cent.

$ $ $

An international banker who is regarded as an authority said that the present month would see the end of the low level for money. Furthermore, he asserted that financing in contemplation ought to be done at once if advantage was to be taken of the rates now prevailing, as the Spring activity would demand an enormous amount of cash. But this does not mean that we are not to have a bull market.

$ $ $

Stronger money rates may cut down investments from abroad somewhat, until our stocks are materially cheaper than they are now, but it is assumed that if the low levels of March 8 are again reached there will be a rush to buy from the other side.

$ $ $

Some selling also is indulged in by foreigners who bought five and six weeks ago and have profits to show on their purchases. They did not sell all the time because they bought the level would advance, but they are selling out now for the reason that they feel sure they can get them a good deal lower. This is exactly what the bears want. They find out where the stop orders are and then offer stocks down until they are reached, and the rest is easy enough. It is cut and dried for them.

$ $ $

That the financial field is divided decidedly and decisively into two camps now is manifest to a cursory observer. To an investigator the situation is somewhat puzzling. The party loosely though correctly termed Standard Oil believes the country is encountering a crisis. The Morgan people anticipate a leading banking business, see some prosperity ahead, regardless of what the Supreme Court may decide in the American Tobacco and Standard Oil litigations.

$ $ $

All fundamentals in State Street point to higher prices, and for that reason the conservative but experienced is hard to understand, except on technical grounds. Leading operators express the opinion that most of the selling is due to the sudden change in the time for expecting the tobacco case decision. Questions put to the lawyers in the Standard Oil hearing by the justices of the Supreme Court show that the justices are thoroughly alive to the popular interest in one of the decision that they will have to render.

Steel has unsettled the market just now because it was bought in the January decline on account of the dividend of 1¾ per cent paid for this quarter. Officially, the rate has been on a 4 per cent. basis only, but actually it was for this one quarter on a 7 per cent. basis. This dividend was subtracted from the price of the stock on Tuesday, and the sudden change from a 7 per cent. rate to a 4 per cent. rate is the chief cause of the trouble. Directors of the first to not hesitate to express the opinion that Steel will be put on a 5 per cent. basis at the next dividend meeting.

$ $ $

Close observers of the market say that they do not notice any holding that seems particularly significant, and consequently they think that the market might work a little lower before the rally sets in. It is believed that if the active stocks should touch 2 or 3 points further there would be substantial buying by interests who, it is said, sold stocks on a rather extensive scale some 5 points higher.

STOCKS HEAVY IN WALL ST.

NEW YORK, March 17.—Stocks were heavy and quiet in the early trading today. Steel and Union Pacific went down to the low levels of yesterday after a short rally. Consolidated Gas, Amalgamated and, in fact, all the standard issues were pressed for sale.

Wall Street supposed that this was due partly to the advance by the Bank of England of its discount rates to 4 per cent., and partly the unfavorable impression made on the public by the Standard Oil arguments at Washington, which were closed yesterday.

The markets in London were very irregular. There was a disposition among professionals on both sides of the Atlantic to get out of the market. American Sugar announced 1st quarter earnings for the period ended December 31 of nearly $11,000,000. This compares with $6,500,000 in the previous year.

HOLD-UP MAN SHOT BY POLICEMEN

EAST ST. LOUIS, Ill., March 17.—William O'Brien was shot and fatally wounded by a man he held up today. Two policemen early to-day, after he had shot and injured seriously three men in robbing two saloons. He was fatally shot by two policemen.

LOCAL COPPER STOCKS QUIET

STATE STREET, March 17.—Wall Street prices were soft at the opening, outside of New York Central, on the full point advance in the Bank of England's rate of discount to 4 per cent, and more or less nervousness was manifest the first hour. The possibility of an amicable adjustment of the Philadelphia strike situation brought confidence and a rally in prices, although the short interest supplied most of the buying.

The local copper share market was dull and subsequent dealings were uninteresting and entirely professional, outside of a 1⅛ point break in the price of La Salle mining shares, and a point decline in North Lake on a point advance was accorded in North Butte.

Local curb trading was light with Champion Copper the active feature. The levying of a $2 assessment by the Live Oak Company had little or no effect on the price of the shares.

In New York Amalgamated after early weakness rose one point, and Steel common about the same amount. Chesapeake rose a point from the low, while New York Central lost its early gain. Reading after a point decline, spurted 1⅜. The Harriman issues also registered good recoveries from the early weakness. Brooklyn Transit was notably firm on the statement that the average daily increase in earnings the first half of March was $4,000 per day. The possibility of an increase in the dividend rate to 5 per cent. in May was also mentioned.

CHAMPION

No investor should buy stock merely because somebody says to buy it. We don't expect anybody to buy Champion Copper Co. shares because we advise it—but because our advice is founded on reason.

Mining stocks reach certain prices as general knowledge on the part of the buying public reflects itself. The more that you can learn about Champion the better it will appeal to you as a purchase. It isn't worth $50 a share. It isn't worth $1 a share. We do believe, however, that its fine ore body, large development work, excellent equipment, milling facilities and the assurance of big future earnings represent a mining equity of 40 to 50 cents a share.

It surely is cheap—if not the very best purchase on the entire Curb list—anywhere from 10 to 15 cents a share. It is a bargain up to 40 cents. We think you ought to buy some and are only surprised that there is any for sale in the market at these low figures. But then—SOME people sold U. S. Steel at $10 a share, ONCE.

Great and Noble Saint Patrick

This Is His Birthday. There Is Something Wrong With the Man That Fails to Do Him Honor.

Copyright, 1910, by American-Journal-Examiner

There lived in Ireland, about fourteen hundred years ago—far back in the night of time as we short-lived little beings look at it—a great, courageous and truly holy man. This man was great because he was brave and good, passionately devoted to knowledge and morality, and by choice all his life a teacher of those that needed teaching.

Saint Patrick was not an Irishman, not being born in Ireland. But he was Irish in this, that he had the Celtic blood of Ireland in his veins and he had the fighting blood of Ireland. And his day is a day that recalls to the minds of all Americans deep and grateful appreciation of what the Irish Celtic race has done in America and all over the world since the old early days, before Alexander started out on his conquering travels.

Saint Patrick had, on his father's side, Roman blood—hence his name Patrick, from Patricius, to show that he was of patrician lineage.

His mother was undoubtedly a Celt of the pure type. And he stands out a noble example of greatness among men.

Nations are always wise in their selection of the heroes that they love and honor. Saint Patrick is worthy of the veneration that his name inspires everywhere.

He worked by choice in this far distant island, looked upon in his day as the last, farthest outskirts of human habitation, the land, as Patrick himself said "farther than which no man is."

The Ireland that Saint Patrick knew as a boy and as an ardent young priest was a savage land, a land of fierce warriors, of fanatic druids. But Saint Patrick's courage was as great as the savagery of that land in which he preached Christianity.

You can image a beautiful picture of him fourteen centuries ago standing straight and fearless on the Hill of Tara beside the King's palace holding in his hand the green three-leaved shamrock, and using that shamrock as a symbol of the holy trinity, preaching a sermon that answered and overwhelmed the arguments of the druids.

A beautiful and a powerful talk, you may be sure, that was of Saint Patrick's, teaching in simple words to that half-savage king and the teachers of his savage religion the beauty of faith in the Father, and the Son and the Spirit exemplified in the little shamrock growing underfoot, and in the beautiful management of the world in which Ireland was but a speck.

Irishmen and all honor themselves in honoring Saint Patrick. He was one—perhaps the greatest—among many men and many women who devoted their lives to the teaching of truth and kindness and to education in its highest sense.

He has been followed in Ireland by men worthy of his courage and of his example.

Fit to be mentioned with Saint Patrick as a great Irishman is O'Connell, who stood on that same Hill of Tara where Saint Patrick stood and denounced the forced union of England and Ireland as "not binding upon conscience, void in principle, void as a matter of right and in constitutional law."

Many have been the noble men who have taught the people of Ireland and great has been the work that the Irish people have done all over this earth, writing, fighting and talking on the side of right.

The fighting and the writing and the talking and the example of the great Patrick and of the other great leaders have not been wasted and will not be lost.

While other nations have given up, the fight in Ireland goes on.

While brute force triumphs elsewhere, Ireland to-day, in politics and in power, is higher than she has been in centuries and still presses on toward the ultimate goal of independence.

For centuries the English have fattened their cattle on the best lands of Ireland and the Irish people have seen their children half starved on the poorer lands.

And the fat cattle have been shipped away to London and the thin children have been obliged to leave their homes and their fathers and mothers and go to America.

But the fight has gone on and is going on. A better day is here already, and better days are coming.

Ireland is still Ireland and still IRISH. There is a vigor in the blood of that people that Saint Patrick loved that nothing can destroy. No famine, no tyranny can beat it down.

One sign of this Irish character is the loyalty to the great names of Ireland, the universal love and affection among Irishmen for the memory of Saint Patrick as typical of Irish history and Irish achievement.

Not many years will pass before the land that recognizes Saint Patrick as the great teacher and honored name will be a free land, free in as true a sense as any State in this Union is free.

May the day come soon.

And may Irishmen now living live to see an Ireland as independent as was that on which the little boy Patrick landed so many centuries ago when he was stolen from his home and taken to the land in which he was to become a blessing and a saint.

LETTERS FROM AMERICAN READERS

LOOKS BAD FOR CHANTICLER.

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

It looks to me like a Chanticler Summer for Boston. But there is a Chanticler evil which has been rampant under my chamber window for the past three months. I think this rooster must have been the one which gave Rostand his inspiration. He crows loudly enough to set a whole coast system in motion. Some fine morning soon the sun will rise without his crowing. Sleep is dead. This rooster has murdered sleep. MacBeth was a sleep reconstructionist compared with this rooster.

Am I not justified in taking the law and this rooster's neck into my own hands? Yours for slumber. MEDFORD.

FALSE SCALES.

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

An article in a current magazine on the high cost of living says that the Chicago sealer of weights and measures found that hundreds of dealers were selling short weight through false scales and short measure packages. Is this condition found in Boston? Would it not be a subject worth investigating by your live newspaper? HOUSEWIFE.

No Crime to Arrest a Good Woman for Drunkenness

The American yesterday published in full the most amazing official opinion ever handed down by Police Commissioner O'Meara, or any other police official in the world.

It is so remarkable that the American hopes all its readers studied it carefully, for more than anything else it PROVES THE UNFITNESS of O'Meara to hold his present office, and it confirms by POLICE EVIDENCE the statements recently made in the Metropolitan Magazine of New York that the Boston Police Department as at present managed is so bad as to be worse than useless.

Arresting a GOOD WOMAN, charging her with drunkenness, taking her to the police station in a patrol wagon, has no serious penalty in Boston.

It simply means that any officer who cares to amuse himself thus can do so if he be willing to serve a few hours overtime at extra work.

It means, too, that the Police Trial Board no longer has any power for good over the police force, and that unanimous and JUST VERDICTS against policemen may be set aside by O'Meara.

O'Meara in his "opinion" goes minutely into the policeman's "state of mind" when he arrested the GOOD WOMAN and admits that he violated the law, violated police regulations, and that he had a "mental lapse" for about five minutes, but should this "lapse" of five minutes be taken seriously when the officer had served eight years on the force, when he had said to the woman in the station house that he had made a "mistake," that he was "sorry," that it would "not happen again," and so on?

O'Meara, almost sobbing himself, pictures the poor policeman nearing middle age, the "MENTAL AGONY" he has suffered since his blunder, the cost of the trial to him and pressing family necessities, if he were to be kicked off the force, and concludes that he has been PUNISHED ENOUGH.

Always the policeman, please bear in mind.

No sobs from O'Meara for the hysterical woman in the patrol wagon, no tears for HER mental agony at the shame and disgrace of the police outrage, no word of apology from O'Meara for her suffering—but she is not a policeman, and she can slink off in shame at the charge and hide herself from the public gaze while the policeman has O'Meara's OFFICIAL PERMISSION to do the same thing over again if he pleases.

The policeman's "lapse" only lasted about five minutes, O'Meara says. During that time he was not "responsible," and a "lapse of five minutes" is not important.

Yet scores of private citizens who have "lapses" of less than five minutes are punished every day.

The unfortunate young Tucker's "lapse" was less than five minutes, yet he paid the penalty. Harry Thaw's "lapse" was less than a minute, but he is paying the penalty, and thousands of other cases might be cited.

Suppose the same policeman had had a real "lapse" and bundled O'Meara himself off to a cell, would that have been a crime?

Suppose he had "fired" a tenement house, would a "lapse" of memory have restored the lives of the unfortunates?

Suppose he had wrecked the State House with a bomb, would such a "lapse" have been condoned?

What a farce it all is! How helpless and hopeless O'Meara is! What an example to the decent men on the police force! What assurance has anybody that the same policeman will not have another "lapse" and arrest some other good woman on an outrageous charge—YOUR MOTHER, YOUR SISTER OR YOUR WIFE, PERHAPS!

Think it over. The police situation in Boston is the most serious problem that confronts the people.

The Boston Evening American guarantees to every advertiser MORE THAN 200,000 MORE CIRCULATION than any other evening newspaper in Boston, and MORE THAN 75,000 MORE CIRCULATION than all the other evening newspapers of Boston combined—giving these newspapers all the circulation they claim. Little Bobbie

He Writes About His Pa's Great Speech

By WILLIAM F. KIRK

WEE sed Pa to Ma the other nite wen he calm hoam to dinner, I have got the chanst of my life for to walk a nalm for myself as a speeker. I am going to attend a lectur gaiv by a colored freend of Mister Peery, & at the end of his lecture I am going to ask permission to defend my deer old freend Doctor Cook.

What in the world has got into yure hed now asked Ma. How can you git a chanst to boost a ded one? That part of it will be all rite, sed Pa. Anybody can boost a grate man, but it taiks a hero & a orator to deefend a dog with a bad naim. I want you & littel Bobbie to go with me & heer my speech. It will be a liberal education for you both.

So Pa dragged Ma & me up to the hall where the colored man was boosting Mister Peery. I dount know if Pa was nervus or not, it was so dark in the hall that I cuddent see his face, all I cou see was white faces & dark faces.

This is a wunderful bunch you took, sed Ma, you maik me weery. How in the world do you expect me to stay here & liseen to sumbing I dount want to heer about, a man I dount want to know about, sur-rounded by a African audience? Cum on, sed Ma, let's beet it.

No, sed Pa, we are going to reemain, beekaus I want you to see the differns between the eloquince of a white orator & the false logick of this speeker which is now speeking. We shall reemain, and I know that I shall be well re-ecved by all theze peepul which must be indeed honored to have me here.

The man which had been boosting for Mister Peery & for himself wasent such a very good talker, he was a littel better talker than Pa & about half as good a talker as Ma. Jest wait till I show him up, Pa kep telling us. I have here a littel poem which I am going to reed to them at the close of my speech, a poem about, Mister Cook, it is called the wanderer. This is how it goes:

The wanderer has wandered far away,
Withered his wreeths of roses & of bay,
In sum hot tropick land he lingers now
With wreeths of prickly heet upon his brow.
Ah, nobel hero, splendid, misjudged martyr,
Thou canst not now be even an added star ter.

That sounds all right, sed Ma, but they wont stand for it here, this is a meeting held for the purpus of praising Peery. I am usually right, Ma sed, & I think I am right this time, let us go hoam. But Pa wudsent go.

After a long time the colored man got thru talking, & Pa got up & cleered his throte. Ladies & gentlemen, he sed, I crave yure indulgence—

Then a man which looked like Jack Johnsing, only bigger, calm up to Pa & sed De meeting am now adjurned. De meeting will so consider itself. But I must maik a littel talk, Pa sed. All right, sed the big man, go hoam and hold the conversation in your domicile. You can discourse all you likes in your abode, he told Pa.

Ma laffed at Pa all the way hoam, she called him Demosthyeeze. Pa didnt laff & I didn't like to talk a chanst.
